White House cast in resignation role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson today cast the White House in a key role in arranging the resignation of Spiro T. Agnew as vice president. He appealed for national understanding and support of the bargain in which Agnew accepted a charge of federal income tax evasion.

At the same time, Richardson urged consideration and compassion for Agnew, who resigned Wednesday and pleaded no contest to the tax charge.

Richardson told a nationally televised news conference that White House counsel

J. Fred Buzhardt made the first approach to government prosecutors for negotiations to settle the Agnew case with a bargained plea.

He said Nixon fully approved the arrangement, sealed Tuesday.

Richardson repeatedly defended the agreement in which Agnew was spared a prison sentence, fined and placed on probation.

"The interests of justice as well as the interests of the public were better served in this instance by a disposition that did not involve confinement of the former vice president in a penal institution," he said. "I can only say that I hope that these considerations prove persuasive to the majority of my fellow citizens."

But he made clear that some others in the prosecution did not agree with his plea for leniency for Agnew.

Richardson said he would not accept nomination to succeed Agnew as vice president. He said that would be inappropriate for the government's chief accuser in the case.

Describing Nixon's role in a bargaining process that began at Buzhardt's suggestion in September, broke down and was resumed last Saturday, Richardson said the President was kept fully informed and approved all major steps.

He said Nixon did not participate in the negotiations. Nor, he said, did Nixon pass upon specific terms of the bargain.

"His was a role of approving the general direction and fundamental basis upon which the matter was being handled," Richardson said.

On other points raised at a news conference that lasted for nearly an hour, Richardson said:

—The Internal Revenue Service is still investigating civil aspects of Agnew's liability for back taxes. He would not speculate on what Agnew might owe the government.

—The bargain precludes further federal prosecution of Agnew on tax, bribery and extortion accusations raised in an investigation of political corruption in Maryland. "We would be limited for anything that antedates the agreement of yesterday," he said.

—Nothing in the agreement with Agnew would prevent further action by state prosecutors in Maryland. But Richardson said he hopes they will not act, and will consider the matter to have been handled "on the basis of fairness and justice in the public interest, both state and federal."

Congressional Republicans discuss possible successors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Republicans met today to discuss possible successors to former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew amid a strong undercurrent of bipartisan opposition to former Gov. John Connally of Texas.

Nixon told congressional leaders and a close aide Wednesday he plans to name a strong vice president who shares his foreign policy views, a description fitting Democrat-turned-Republican Connally.

And an usually well-informed Capitol Hill Republican said "If it's anybody but Connally, I'll be shocked."

Republicans were preparing lists of possible nominees for submission to the White House by late today. Several said, however, they thought that procedure was "a charade" that won't influence Nixon's thinking.

Some GOP senators said they fear public opposition to a Connally designation might prompt Nixon to name him, while a leading Democratic senator was quoted as saying "If the President names Connally, that would split both parties."

One congressional source predicted flatly that a Connally nomination would be rejected by the Senate. Democrats control both houses of Congress, and both must approve the President's choice.

Some Democrats are already mapping plans to fight a Connally nomination, another source reported.

Word that New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was interested in the nomination came both from Republican senators and Rep. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y., who said through a spokesman as House GOP members met that he had received a phone call from the governor expressing an "active interest" in the post.

In the Senate, the liberal and moderate Republicans who form the Wednesday Group held a breakfast discussion about the situation but reached no conclusions.

Besides the names of Connally, Rockefeller and California Gov. Ronald Reagan, all potential 1976 contenders, and a series of less political senior GOP statesmen, there was some talk that Nixon might make a surprise choice of a lesser known person.

Names mentioned in that respect were former congressman and White House aide Donald Rumsfeld, now U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization; former Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware and former California Lt. Gov. Robert Finch.

Peyser will try to build support for Rockefeller among the GOP delegation that met in a House chamber. Peyser's spokesman said.

At the White House, press secretary Ronald Ziegler said President Nixon hopes to be receiving suggestions from Congress and party leaders and begin assessing Agnew's possible successor at meetings with members of his staff "by the end of the day."

Nixon "wants to move as expeditiously and rapidly as possible" in sending the name of a successor to Congress, Ziegler said. Nixon was in his office by 7:30 a.m.

Local reaction indicates Agnew took best action

From the average Sedalian to former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, Missourians expressed shock, surprise and approval Wednesday after the announcement by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew of his resignation under fire.

"I was a little surprised," said Paul Wright, 718 East 10th, upon hearing the news. "I thought he'd stick it out under the circumstances... heaven only knows whether the other charges were true. Income tax evasion seems like sort of a weak charge (to force the resignation) to me."

"It should make it interesting for Republicans in finding a vice president and a candidate for '76," Wright continued. "That should be a real fight."

Mrs. R. H. Sims, 232 State Fair, said, "I think he did exactly what he ought to do. Of course, we don't know all the facts. If we knew the truth, we'd be able to comment better, but I don't think we'll ever know all of it."

"It was the graceful way out, I think," said Mrs. Joe Bowers, 1006 Leone. "I'm pleased he resigned. Under the circumstances, I think he did the right thing."

Donald Cramer, 2042 East Seventh, expressed his feelings about the administration in general. "I think Nixon's next," he said. "I think he (Agnew) did the right thing. If he's got something in his closet, he'd better get it out before it gets him."

Ira D. Hackett, 1316 South Osage, expressed the opinion that Agnew's resignation was proper. "There's so much going on up there (Washington) with Watergate and now the Agnew problem that it was the best thing he could have done."

John Kavalier, 307 East 14th, expressed anger at the court's decision to only fine Agnew for income tax evasion and not impose a prison sentence.

"If you evaded income tax," he said, "they would put you in jail. If I evaded income tax, they would put me in jail. The idea is, if you go to jail for a felony, John Jones ought to go along with you. The federal judge just spanked his hand and sent him home," Kavalier said.

Sedalia's Republican Mayor Jerry Jones issued the following statement Wednesday evening:

"I'm surprised and saddened to some extent that this has happened. It is, of course, rather dismaying that these kind of things seem to be a part, almost, of our way of life. Of course, they shouldn't be."

"I truly hope the President and the Congress, in their wisdom, can certainly fulfill their duties at this time and appoint a successor who will bring both the sense of leadership and purpose this country needs."

Says campaign dirty tricks created 'unparalleled' discord

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern's former campaign manager testified today that Nixon campaign dirty tricks during last year's presidential primaries successfully created "an unparalleled atmosphere of rancor and discord within the Democratic party."

Frank Mankiewicz told the Senate Watergate committee the sabotage efforts of Nixon campaign agent Donald H. Segretti and his accomplices "seems to have been most successful."

Mankiewicz thus differed with Segretti and others who have claimed the dirty tricks had "the weight of a feather" in the eventual landslide reelection of President Nixon in November.

Mankiewicz, who released his opening statement to the committee in advance of his scheduled appearance, said among other things that former campaigners for Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine had told him they blamed McGovern for dirty tricks played on Muskie in the New Hampshire primary.

He said in California both McGovern and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota "were led to believe that the other was involved in a vicious campaign of distortion and vilification."

Preceding Mankiewicz was another former McGovern campaigner, Rick Stearns, who bristled and resentfully fenced with both Democratic and Republican committee lawyers as he denied authorizing use of McGovern telephones to promote an anti-Nixon rally in Los Angeles Sept. 27, 1972.

Stearns, who appeared with two lawyers, contested testimony given Wednesday by Frederick J. Taugher, who had been southern California campaign coordinator for McGovern. Taugher said Stearns approved use of the telephones.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal grand jury Thursday indicted former White House aide Egil Krogh Jr. on two counts of perjury.

Stearns went on to attack unnamed members of the committee's staff for what he called a partisan attempt to equate the demonstration incident with the Nixon campaign in sabotage, wiretapping, burglary and other Watergate-related incidents.

In his opening statement, Mankiewicz denounced former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman for testimony in which he implied that Democrats were responsible for such incidents as burning of Nixon campaign headquarters, indecent exposure, assaults on Republican delegates, vandalism and attacks on police.

Mankiewicz said none of the activities Haldeman cited had the knowledge and consent of any agent of the McGovern campaign.

Stearns, a Harvard Law School student and formerly Western states coordinator for McGovern's campaign, said the McGovern campaign made mistakes, "but we did not commit crimes."

Emergency crews evacuate residents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Emergency crews raced to evacuate residents from their homes in half-dozen cities in Kansas and western Missouri today after seven, eight and nine inches of rain drenched the area.

Wildcat Creek forced about 1,000 people from their homes in the south part of Manhattan, Kan.

About 400 were being evacuated in the northeast part of El Dorado, Kan., as both forks of the Walnut River edged out of their banks.

Some 150 of the 250 residents of Louisville, Kan., about 17 miles east of Manhattan, left their homes and lined Kansas 99 just north of its junction with U. S. 24.

Disaster workers were evacuating about 500 residents from low-lying sections of often-flooded Smithville, Mo., on the north fringe of the Kansas City metropolitan area.

About six houses were evacuated at Wolcott, Kan., on the Missouri River just upstream from Kansas City.

The slow-moving storm dumped eight and nine inches of rain on a broad band from Arkansas City on the south-central border of Kansas to the northeast corner of the state.

It also triggered several tornadoes in the area from El Dorado to west of Wichita.

A 5-month-old girl was critically injured when a twister wrecked a mobile home at Colwich.

Rainfall measurements in Kansas included 9.08 inches at Arkansas City on the south-central border and 8.76 at Holton in the northeast corner of the state. Readings of five, six and seven inches were common at points in between, including 8.2 inches at Hutchinson, Kan.

The reading at Bethany in northwest Missouri was 6.9 inches. The 4.7 inches which fell at Kansas City International airport in the 24 hours ended at 7 a.m. set an all-time one-day record for October.

Many roads were blocked by flood water.

Israeli forces raid across the Suez Canal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Israeli military command announced its ground forces crossed the cease-fire line in the Golan Heights today and staged hit-and-run commando raids across the Suez Canal.

Israeli air and naval raids on Syrian and Egyptian positions along the Mediterranean coast and Suez Canal were also confirmed by Arab communiques. They reported the attacks were repelled and claimed 86 Israeli planes had been shot down.

Israeli gunboats during the night shelled the Syrian port of Latakia and the Banias terminal for the Iraqi oil pipeline. Israel claimed two Syrian missile boats sunk without any Israeli loss, while the Syrians claimed eight Israeli boats and a Greek freighter were sunk.

In the Golan Heights, Israel reported its forces were attacking Syrian armored and infantry forces guarding the road to Damascus.

Commando raids behind the Egyptian Suez Canal front struck at "convoys and rear echelons of the enemy," the Israeli command reported.

The Egyptians have reported penetrating nine miles east of the canal into Israeli-occupied Sinai and a communique today reported an Egyptian armored force had encircled fleeing Israeli tanks and destroyed an entire column.

Western visitors to the Egyptian front Wednesday reported forces and supplies continued to move across the canal to reinforce the Egyptian positions.

Syria and Egypt, involved in the fighting since its outbreak six days ago, were joined in battle Wednesday by Iraq, Jordan, which has a long frontier with Israel and fought in the six-day war in 1967, has mobilized its reserves and was reported under heavy pressure to enter the war on the Arab side.

Both the Soviet Union and the United States accused each other of resupplying the fighting nations. Officials in Washington and Israel said Wednesday the Soviets were airlifting materiel to the Arabs.

Moscow had no comment on the statements but published a report of American arms shipments to Israel. The report quoted an account published by the Norfolk (Va.) Ledger-Star and said the United States was "secretly supplying Israel with arms and ammunition."

NAACP convention speaker is named

An address by Elmer Turner, St. Louis, area director of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, will highlight the state convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Oct. 19 and 20 at the Ramada Inn here.

Mrs. Haristine Draffen, 209 East Jackson, president of the local NAACP chapter, said 150 delegates are expected to attend the meeting, which will also feature education workshops both days. A Freedom Fund dinner, featuring Turner, will be held at 7 p.m. Oct. 20.

Among the items to be discussed at the workshops are affirmative action in higher education and equal opportunity employment, a spokesman for the state NAACP office said.

Admission to the convention, which reportedly is the first such meeting to be held in Sedalia, is open to the public. Mrs. Draffen said. Reservations for the dinner, can be made by contacting Mrs. Draffen at 826-3891.

Events of day Agnew resigned

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — As night fell, lights shone in the White House. But the offices of Spiro T. Agnew were dark.

The two parking spaces on West Executive Avenue, guarded by yellow stripes and a sign reading "Parking for the Vice President," were vacant. So was the nation's second highest office.

Facing corruption charges, Agnew had resigned and pleaded no contest to a single count of income tax evasion.

Now one of the most momentous days in America's political history was fading into the autumn dusk, carrying with it the tattered remnants of Agnew's political career.

Wednesday had been a day of pain for Agnew and others, from typists in his office to top vice presidential aides.

At mid-afternoon Tuesday, a red carnation in the lapel of his dark grey suit, Agnew stood in a gilded ballroom of New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and addressed a congress of building industry representatives.

There was no ringing declaration of innocence, no vow to fight indictment, no promise not to resign. Only a bland defense of Nixon administration housing programs and a lone quip:

"I thought I might come here and give a provocative speech on the relationship between architects and engineers and the political fund-raising process. Then, I thought I would not. At least not today."

The speech done, Agnew headed for an airport where a blue, white and silver jet waited to fly him back to Washington and a meeting with the President.

His decision had been made earlier. Virtually all the details had been worked out between his lawyers and the Justice Department.

Now it was time for a farewell call on Richard M. Nixon, who, on a steamy summer day five years ago, summoned him from political obscurity and made him his running mate.

At six o'clock Agnew walked alone into the Oval Office. He and Nixon took twin gold chairs before an unlit fireplace and talked for 40 minutes.

Precisely what was said hasn't been disclosed. One aide said it was "personal talk, not about details or about the arrangement but about personal things."

Their meeting over, they went their separate ways—Agnew to the limousine waiting downstairs in parking space 32 for a drive to his suburban home, Nixon alone through a portico to his living quarters to dress for a state dinner.

Agnew spent his evening in private, apparently with his family. Nixon spent most of his in public without giving a hint of what had happened.

With 100 black-tie guests in the State Dining Room, Nixon lifted his champagne glass to toast President Felix Houphouët-Boigny of the Ivory Coast.

Later, there was a period of privacy upstairs in the presidential quarters where he likes to slouch in an easy chair, prop up his feet and listen to music and think.

A half-hour after dawn, Nixon was in his Oval Office again, a morning cup of coffee on the polished desk, listening to Henry A. Kissinger recite in his deep, accented voice the latest developments on a more distant crisis: the war in the Middle East.

Not until several hours later would Kissinger be told by the President that his new duties as secretary of state would require him to officially receive Agnew's resignation.

Little is known of Agnew's Wednesday morning activities. Nixon's morning included a meeting with congressional leaders to brief them on the war and what was being done to try to stop it.

No mention was made at the meeting of Agnew. But his absence from the session caused murmurs in the carpeted corridors of the White House.

Some middle-level aides said later they were certain by mid-morning that Agnew had resigned, or would soon.

But they had only hunches. Those in the White House who knew could be counted on one hand—staff chief Alexander M. Haig, Jr., Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and one or two others.

After the leadership meeting, Nixon received President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire for an hour's talk. Afterwards, he talked again with Kissinger.

Five minutes before noon Nixon entered the East Room to preside at the presentation of

Text of resignation letters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following are the texts of Spiro T. Agnew's formal letter of resignation as vice president—sent to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger under statutory procedures; Agnew's advisory letter of his resignation to President Nixon, and Nixon's reply to Agnew.

The Honorable Henry A. Kissinger

The Secretary of State

Washington, D.C. 20520

Dear Mr. Secretary:

I hereby resign the office of Vice President of the United States, effective immediately.

Sincerely,
Spiro T. Agnew

Oct. 10, 1973

Dear Mr. President:

As you are aware, the accusations against me cannot be resolved without a long, divisive and debilitating struggle in the Congress and in the courts. I have concluded that, painful as it is to me and to my family, it is in the best interest of the nation that I relinquish the vice presidency.

Accordingly, I have today resigned the office of vice president of the United States.

A copy of the instrument of resignation is enclosed.

It has been a privilege to serve with you. May I express to the American People, through you, my deep gratitude for their confidence in twice electing me to be vice president.

Sincerely,
Spiro T. Agnew

Oct. 10, 1973
Dear Ted:

The most difficult decisions are often those that are the most personal, and I know your decision to resign as vice president has been as difficult as any facing a man in public life could be. Your departure from the administration leaves me with a great sense of personal loss. You have been a valued associate throughout these nearly five years that we have served together. However, I respect your decision, and I also respect the concern for the national interest that led you to conclude that a resolution of the matter in this way, rather than through an extended battle in the courts and the congress, was advisable in order to prevent a protracted period of national division and uncertainty.

As Vice President, you have addressed the great issues of our times with courage and candor. Your strong patriotism, and your profound dedication to the welfare of the nation, have been an inspiration to all who have served with you as well as to millions of others throughout the country.

I have been deeply saddened by this whole course of events, and I hope that you and your family will be sustained in the days ahead by a well-justified pride in all that you have contributed to the nation by your years of service as vice president.

Sincerely,
Richard Nixon

Term of triumph begins with scandal

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It was to have been a term of triumph, but the first of President Nixon's four more years has instead been a time of scandal.

And while the resignation of Spiro T. Agnew as vice president confronts Nixon with yet another crisis, it also presents him an opportunity to rebuild and perhaps restore shaken confidence in his administration.

Amid the disclosures that Watergate and its cover-up reached top echelons in his White House, Nixon could only maintain his personal innocence and urge that the nation turn its attention to other business.

In the case of Agnew, who admitted income tax evasion while denying government accusations of other wrongdoing, Nixon can act.

Within hours of Agnew's resignation, the President was doing so, consulting congressional leaders about the selection of a new vice president. He advised them he would make his nomination within days. Then it will be up to Congress.

Fewer commuters enter Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commuters are changing their spots, says The Road Information Program. Millions of metropolitan workers now drive to work and back without entering the central city.

By 1985, suburb-to-suburb travel will represent more than half of the work trips near our cities, according to the nonprofit research and information agency.

TRIP says the nation's capital is a good example of suburb liberation. Here, 41 per cent of all Washington-area commuters never enter the city, compared with 30 per cent 10 years ago.

Behavior of the Kremlin spells danger for detente

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The behavior of the Kremlin now, as compared with its attitude in the 1956 and 1967 Middle East wars, spells serious danger to the fledgling Moscow-Washington detente.

The fragile structure of the new relationship was built in the two summits of President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev. The Suez war of 1956 and the six-day war of 1967 each produced a situation that could have brought a Soviet-American clash. There were some extremely tense moments, notably in 1967. But in both those cases the Russians wanted hostilities halted because their client Arabs clearly were in desperate straits.

This time the Arabs are doing much better, having had the advantage of surprise on their side. The Russians have seemed to want to defer talk of cease-fire at least until they could make out the Arab prospects more clearly.

In the 1956 Suez crisis, the Russians rattled their rockets, called attention to their armed might and threatened "appropriate" measures to deal with the combined British-French and Israeli attack on Egypt. But Israel had driven swiftly through Sinai to the canal. Egypt's defenses were shattered. Moscow was willing to call for cease-fire and salvage what was salvagable.

When war broke out on June 5, 1967, Moscow and Washington quickly consulted by "hot line" in an atmosphere of extreme anxiety.

Again Russia's Arab clients, taken by surprise, were rapidly reduced to a desperate situation. Again the Russians were willing to join in a cease-fire call.

In each case, Moscow and Washington were claiming readiness to collaborate in urging restraint upon their respective allies.

This time the situation has an uglier look as pressures mount on both superpowers.

Washington is worried about the possibility of backlash in Arab oil states that might lead to serious fuel stoppage, a step that might be taken to discourage such American military help to Israel as the replacement of her considerable initial losses.

Registration law undergoes changes

By JACK SCHICHT
Democrat-Capitol Staff Writer

The new state law requiring mandatory voter registration has changed some phases of the registration process, but, for the most part, the regulations remain the same.

The main impact of the statute, which went into effect Sept. 28 is that in order to vote in any election — whether it be a presidential primary or local bond issue — the voter in Missouri must be registered. In previous elections in Pettis County, only voters living in Sedalia had to be registered.

Pettis County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson, who attended a voter registration seminar last week in Jefferson City, made the following observations about the new law:

All persons who were registered to vote before the new law do not have to re-register. All others must register in person with the county clerk's office either at the county courthouse or at one of the registration booths which are periodically set up in some of the rural communities. Mrs. Wilson advised that registrants know their township, school district and social security number.

Persons who were registered to vote in Sedalia and who have moved out of the city limits do not have to re-register if they are already registered to vote. Mrs. Wilson said these persons, however, must send a written notice of the address change to the county clerk's office, signed by at least one member of the family.

The address change must include the previous address, the new address and the voters affected by the change.

Anyone who changes addresses must tell the county clerk's office — in writing — of the change, Mrs. Wilson noted. She said this must be done even if the voter moves to a residence in the same ward and precinct or the same township.

Single women who were registered under their maiden names must re-register if they marry, Mrs. Wilson said.

Under the provisions of the new law, Mrs. Wilson said, a person who does not vote in a four-year period will no longer be dropped from the registration books for failure to vote. However, since the registration books were updated last year when the old rule was in effect, some persons may have been affected by the rule. These persons may be reinstated simply by signing a postcard and saying they want to be placed on the books again.

Persons still must be county and state residents for 30 days and at least 18 years old to be eligible to vote.

Mrs. Wilson said that the registration books must be closed four Wednesdays prior to an election. However, she indicated that the books will be closed only to those persons who are eligible to vote in the election. Thus, in a LaMonte city election for instance, only persons in LaMonte would be restricted from registering to vote until after the election. In the case of a county-wide election, however, the books would be closed for all county residents.

Mrs. Wilson said this section of the law is not clear-cut. She said before she attended the seminar she did not know whether the books would have to be closed to all the county residents or just those eligible to vote in the particular election. "I heard nothing to say it was not legal," she said of her interpretation. "I can't see restricting everyone in the county in the case of a small election."

First donation

Mayor Jerry Jones becomes the first to contribute to Tootsie Roll Days, Oct. 12-13, a program to aid the mentally retarded of Missouri, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus. The organization, aided by the Daughters of Isabella and the junior and senior classes of Sacred Heart High School, will solicit contributions at various Sedalia sites. Proceeds from the statewide program will be used to aid retarded citizens, with 60 per cent of the funds collected remaining in the area where collected. The balance will be used on a state-wide basis. Accepting the contribution from Jones is Pete Stohr, a Grand Knight with Council 831 of the Knights of Columbus.

To aid retarded

Knights sponsor drive

Local citizens with a sweet tooth and a generous heart can satisfy both their natural inclinations this coming week during the "Tootsie Roll Days" fund drive sponsored by local Council No. 831, Knights of Columbus.

Proceeds from the candy sale will be used to provide funds for aiding retarded citizens across the state, local council Grand Knight Peter Stohr explained. Sixty per cent of the money collected, Stohr said, will be returned locally, with the remaining 40 per cent being given to the Knights of Columbus Retardation Foundation of Missouri.

In addition to the Knights of Columbus, Stohr said that members of the Daughters of Isabella organization and students at Sacred Heart junior and senior high school will also assist in selling the candy. The drive will be held Friday afternoon and all day Saturday.

Solicitation centers, Stohr said, will be located at Third and Kentucky, Fourth and Osage, Third and Lamine, the downtown business district, and at the State Fair and Thompson Hills Shopping Centers.

The Knights of Columbus retardation foundation, since it's beginning in 1970, has given more than $18,000 in grants to sheltered workshops, associations for retarded children, special education classes and districts, pre-schools, developmental learning centers and long-care programs. The Knights have also granted scholarships for the past two years to teachers for special studies to qualify them to teach handicapped and retarded children.

Book Tells How To Knit Raglans

"Raglans Unlimited" is a book of concise and simple knitting directions for all basic raglan sweaters: Pullovers and Cardigans, with a choice of Round, Turtle or V neck; even a choice of long or short sleeves in the lighter weights of yarn. As a matter of fact, you can make 416 different sweaters from this book without repeating!

This book gives all patterns worked from the neck down — the very popular method of knitting raglans which has heretofore been so hard to find in a range of sizes and for different weights of yarn. As most knitters know, or will be delighted to discover, this method of knitting a sweater gives a finished garment that requires an absolute minimum of finishing or putting together and eliminates entirely the necessity of "setting in" sleeves — a task which so many knitters find objectionable.

Instructions are given for all sizes ranging from 2 through 52. There are very few knitting instruction books available with these larger sizes for any style or type of sweater, much less raglans.

Also: the instructions are given for four different weights of yarn: fine weight fingering yarn, medium weight sport yarn; heavy weight knitting worsted and also for the bulky weight.

Directions are written so that a complete sweater can be made without turning a page, with none of the usual tracking down of bits and pieces of information from page to page, to be put together like a jigsaw puzzle. This should appeal to the most experienced knitter, as it certainly will to the novice — and all degrees of skill in between.

"Raglans Unlimited" is not available in stores and can be purchased only through the mail by sending $2.00 (postpaid) to Knit 'N' Notion, P.O. Box 161, Fairless Hills, Pa. 19030. Dept. B342.

DEATH NOTICES

Miss Melva Overstreet

Miss Melva M. Overstreet, 82, 220 South Prospect, died at 1:45 a.m. Thursday at Fairview Nursing Home.

She was born Jan. 27, 1891, at Versailles, daughter of David and Molly Williams Overstreet.

She was a member of the First Christian Church. She attended college in Warrensburg and taught school in Knob Noster, Kansas City and in the "Little Red School House" in Sedalia. She had also worked for lawyers and stockbrokers in Chicago.

Also surviving is one brother, Robert M. Overstreet Sr., Anapolis, Md.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Robert Magee officiating.

Palbearers will be Leonard Ditzfeld, George Bryant, Brooke Wade, M.D. Giokaris, Charles Maggard and L. J. Brown.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery. The family will receive friends Friday afternoon at the funeral home.

Mrs. Frances S. McCorkle

Mrs. Frances S. McCorkle, 77, 419 North Prospect, died at her home at 11:45 a.m. Wednesday. Mrs. McCorkle was formerly of St. Louis and she has lived in Sedalia since 1968.

She was born in Benton County, Sept. 6, 1896, daughter of the late Liburn and Jemima Hudson Thorp. She was married in 1914 in Pettis County to Herbert McCorkle, who died in 1935.

Mrs. McCorkle was a member of the Assembly of God Church.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Jemima Darling, St. Louis; Miss Marcia McCorkle, New York, N.Y.; two sons, Phillip T. McCorkle, Marshall; Francis Hudson McCorkle, Houston, Tex.; two brothers, Jack Dewey Thorp, Nelson; Liburn B. Thorp, Blackwater; two sisters, Mrs. Addie Davis, Kansas City; Mrs. Elizabeth Hoke, Sullivan; 11 grandchildren and 13 great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 1 p.m. Saturday. Burial will be in the Miller's Chapel Cemetery.

The body is at the funeral home.

Plea of guilty results in a fine of $100

A Sedalia man who was charged with shooting another man with a pistol on Aug. 18 was fined $100 and costs Wednesday after he pleaded guilty in Pettis County Circuit Court.

Fined was Ira Lee Cochran, 23, Pettis and Osage, who was charged with felonious assault without malice aforethought. Cochran was not sentenced to a jail term and was given 45 days to pay his court costs.

Cochran's charge stems from a shooting incident in the 300 block of North Osage in which he allegedly shot William R. Lewis, 22, 318 East Johns, in the shoulder. Lewis was not seriously injured.

Cochran was arrested Aug. 18 by Sedalia police, released and arrested again Aug. 20. He had spent about two months in the county jail prior to his court appearance Wednesday.

In other court action Thursday, Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyer declared a mistrial in the jury trial of Frank Bryan, 54, Crestview Trailer Court.

Bryan is charged with issuing a no funds check of $187.75 last May.

Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said the mistrial was declared during the selection of jurors. He explained that the dismissal of several prospective jurors reduced the number of potential jurors below 24, the minimum number needed from which to pick a 12-man jury.

The case will be reset at the next docket setting on Nov. 26, according to Circuit Court Clerk Bill Lyles.

Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery here.

The family will receive friends Friday afternoon and from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday at the James Funeral Home here.

Cubans try to storm U.N. rostrum

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Cuba's foreign minister and his aides tried to storm the General Assembly rostrum Wednesday night to attack the Chilean ambassador.

U.N. guards and delegates from other nations — including Nicaragua, Paraguay, Uruguay, Bolivia and Chile — stopped Foreign Minister Raul Roa a few yards from the podium.

Later Roa told the assembly he rushed at Chilean Ambassador Raul Bagan "solely and exclusively to give him the slap that he required."

Bazan had called Prime Minister Fidel Castro "an impotent leader with expansionist goals" and Roa "a man who chews the cud of hatred and knows nothing of dignity."

Bazan said Castro "used to watch executions and invited diplomats from other countries to watch."

At that point, Roa and his aides rushed down a side aisle toward the front of the chamber shouting "son of a bitch" and "fag" in Spanish.

Nicaraguan delegates rose from their seats and shouted the same words back at the Cubans.

The chief U.N. security officer, Lt. Col. Harold A. Trimble of Canada, said the incident was "potentially the most serious" moment in his five years at the United Nations.

The assembly hall was only about one quarter full with mostly Latin American delegates present. The president of the assembly, Leopoldo Benites of Ecuador, asked the delegates "to forgive this incident, which is unheard of in the history of the United Nations."

Observers recalled no earlier incidents of outright violence in the assembly hall, although Bazan at the speaker's podium last Wednesday elbowed Saudi Arabian Ambassador Jamil M. Baroody, and Baroody shoved back. Undersecretary Bradford Morse separated the two.

U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali accused Roa of using "gutter vulgarity" and denied the Cuban's charge that the U.S. government was involved in the military coup that overthrew Castro's Chilean ally, the late President Salvador Allende.

Roa later replied to the Chilean charges about the executions in public after Castro took power in 1959. "We had to execute a number of war criminals. We will continue to execute them, those who are at the service of the CIA, imperialism or the Pentagon."

Welcoming plaque

Jake Siragusa, center, president of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, displays a plaque that will be presented at future grand openings of new businesses in Sedalia, wishing the new businessmen "good luck," as symbolized by the horseshoe on the plaque. With Siragusa in the photo are Abe Silverman, right, and John Ellison, both past presidents of the Chamber. The showing of the plaque followed a dinner given by the Chamber for past presidents. The event was held at Holiday Inn Wednesday evening and was attended by 14 past presidents as well as current officers and members.

Industrial director plan gets backing of Chamber

The necessity for a full time industrial director for Sedalia, continuing communication between the Chamber of Commerce and members and the attitude of "striving to sell" Sedalia were the main points discussed Wednesday night at a dinner meeting at the Holiday Inn of the Chamber. Fourteen past presidents and other members attended. John Ellison, president from 1972-73, said.

"It was a productive meeting, a constructive meeting," he said. The past presidents were called on individually to make comments and suggestions to the Chamber.

Current President Jake Siragusa outlined for the former presidents the activities of the Chamber for this year.

These include working with the city for procurement of an industrial director; quarterly breakfasts featuring governmental speakers; the Carson and Barnes Circus and Scott Joplin Festival; a drawing for two freezers of beef bought at the 4-H sale and the Christmas Parade, both in cooperation with retail merchants.

A membership drive which added 58 Chamber members was also discussed, as were an Ambassadors Club to call on members and sponsorship of the airman of the quarter program, among other activities.

Past presidents attending were: Abe Silverman, 1946-47; Aaron W. Haller, 1950-51; Jack M. Cunningham, 1951-52; Kenneth U. Love Sr., 1954-55; Floyd H. Priddy, 1955-56; Del Heckart, 1957-58; William C. Hopkins, 1958-60; S. E. Boyle, 1961-63; P. Cecil Owen, 1963-65; Carl W. Yates Jr., 1965-68; Thomas T. Keating, 1968-70; Louis R. Hughes Jr., 1970-71; Bill Burkholder, 1971-72; John B. Ellison Jr., 1972-73.

Hearing date set for gas rate hike requests by firm

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — A hearing on a request by Missouri Utilities Co., of Cape Girardeau for increases in electric, gas and water service rates will be held by the Missouri Public Service Commission here Feb. 4. The firm provides electric service to Smithton.

The hearing will be held for the purpose of cross-examining witnesses and will begin at 10 a.m. A pre-hearing conference is scheduled for Jan. 28, and intervenors and members of the PSC staff must file their prepared testimony and exhibits by Jan. 18. The company has already filed its evidence.

The firm is asking for increases in gross annual revenues of $1,614,500 in electric rates, $397,000 in gas rates and $203,800 water rates. Missouri Utilities provides electric and gas services in Cooper, Moniteau, Morgan and Saline Counties, among others. Smithton is the only community in Pettis County receiving electric service from the company, it was reported.

Theft value is set at more than $6,000

Police are investigating a break-in and two thefts of cash that netted thieves about $6,200 Wednesday and Thursday.

A large assortment of hand tools, tool chests, gauges and metal cabinets, valued collectively at about $5,000, were stolen during a break-in at Chancellor's Garage, 16th and Ohio, shortly after midnight Thursday morning, according to police.

A passerby reportedly called police when he noticed the garage door open at the business. A squad car was dispatched and the owner, Bob Chancellor, Route 5, was called.

Entry to the building was apparently gained by going through a window on the north side of the building, after which a vehicle, believed to be a truck, was apparently backed up to an overhead door which was opened and the merchandise loaded.

A sausage dealer from Springfield, Mo., was reportedly robbed of between $800 to $1,000 shortly after 7 p.m. Wednesday by one of six persons who reportedly stopped him at Broadway and Engineer and said they wanted to buy some sausage.

The dealer, Gerry Gillenwaters, told police that while he was getting the sausage, one of the individuals grabbed his billfold, containing the cash, ran to a black and white convertible and drove off.

Mrs. Floyd Thomas, Route 6, reported to police that someone stole a shopping bag and $200 in cash from her while she was shopping at Bing's, State Fair Shopping Center, shortly after 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Thomas told police that the bag and cash were taken from her shopping cart while she shopped for a few items at the store.

In other police news, Karen Lybarger, 1016 South Harrison, reported 10 tapes, a tape case, a poncho and a pillow, valued at $79 collectively, stolen from her car while it was parked at 200 Industrial Drive, sometime between 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and 1:15 a.m. Thursday.

Entry to the vehicle was apparently gained by forcing open a wing vent.

Two concrete statues, valued at $60, were taken from the porch of the Ernest Sauers residence, 710 West Sixth, between 10:30 a.m. Tuesday and 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, it was reported.

Three Filipinos hijack plane to Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP) — Three armed Filipinos hijacked a Philippine Air Line jet today on an inter-island flight, took the airline president hostage in Manila, then flew to Hong Kong, military authorities said.

The hijackers surrendered at the Hong Kong airport after several hours of negotiations. The crew and the airline president were reportedly unharmed.

The hijackers had released the plane's 64 passengers at the stop in Manila.

A government spokesman said the three young men surrendered after being informed that Philippines President Ferdinand E. Marcos had granted them amnesty.

There was no immediate reason given for the hijacking by the men, whose identities were not known.

After they landed at the Hong Kong airport, they told authorities they wanted political asylum.

The 64 passengers originally aboard the plane included three American Peace Corps volunteers. They were identified as Diane Smidesang, 23, Tacoma, Wash.; Mary Crowley, 22, Chicago and Jill Barthen, 22, Orient, Ohio.

After the passengers were released in Manila, airline president Benigno Toda Jr. went aboard to serve as a hostage.

The airline's operations vice president, Air Force Col. Godofredo Juliano, also boarded the plane to negotiate with the hijackers but got off before the plane left Manila. It had been erroneously reported earlier that he was also a hostage.

Fire does $500 damage to house

An early morning fire caused an estimated $500 damage to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Osbourn, 1014 South Osage, Thursday.

Two trucks responded to the alarm at 4:40 a.m. Cause of the blaze was listed as a cigarette burning on the couch in the living room.

Fire Chief Willis Jabas estimated damage at $350 to the house and $150 to contents. The blaze was contained to the living room.

Toys, decorations, novelties

Handmade cloth dolls, Christmas decorations, rugs and quilts are a few of the items being made for the Cosmopolitan Junior Women's Bazaar to be held from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Oct. 30 at First Christian Church. Proceeds from the sale will help finance State School No. 21, Children's Therapy Center, State Fair Community College Scholarship, Girls Town and Sophomore Pilgrimage. From left are Mrs. Janice Barton, 2508 Stephenson; Mrs. Elaine Chamblin, 2524 Southwest Blvd.; Mrs. Betty Wear, 2430 West First.

Celebrity items to be sold to the highest bidder this year will include a casserole dish from Sara Barker, who writes "Come Into My Kitchen" for the Kansas City Star; a deck of cards from Joey Bishop; a gold brocade purse from Phyllis Diller; a silk scarf from Princess Grace of Monaco; a pencil with her teeth marks on it from Ann Landers; golf gloves from Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino; and many other items.

Polly's pointers

Paint, bricks make an ugly fireplace

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — We have run into a problem while redoing our own farmhouse. The brick fireplace is a mess as the bricks have been painted, first with a maroon color, and then with white paint on top of that. Does anyone have any good suggestions for removing paint from bricks? — PHYLIS

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns today's lack of manners. Today "Thank you" and "Please" for fetching and doing tasks in the home are absent. Children and parents, too, respond with more alacrity when these words are used. Time and time again I have seen a woman sail through a door held open by a man with no acknowledgment made of his courtesy. It takes such little effort to nod, smile and offer a word of thanks. Is the pace of living so accelerated and are we as people so harried that we have no time for such amenities? Take time! Good manners are infectious and a plague of them would make life more pleasant for everybody. — GRANDMA B

DEAR POLLY — Pat wanted to know how to make her 9x12 living room rug lie flat on the floor. She should use double faced adhesive carpet tape, the kind used on wall-to-wall carpeting. I have had good results using this to anchor runners to the floor. It can be removed any time. — MRS. L. P.

DEAR POLLY — Pat could make her rug lie flat by folding masking tape down the center (sticky sides out) and placing strips of this at intervals along the underside of the rug. I used this method when I made a room-size rug out of carpet samples for my daughter's bedroom. When something is spilled on this rug I merely remove the soiled sample and replace it with a new one. Such a rug is most satisfactory where there is danger of accidents. — MARY JEAN

DEAR POLLY — Children love corn-on-the-cob but eating it can present many problems. When serving corn-on-the-cob to my grandchildren I generously spread butter or margarine on thick slices of bread (one for each child). When eating the corn, they roll the cob over the butter on the bread. The corn is buttered with no muss and no waste and the bread can be eaten later. — MRS. C.

DEAR POLLY — During a recent stay in the hospital I wanted to read the newspaper but found it too clumsy to handle. Finally I took a letter opener, split all the double pages and then fastened the sheets, in order, with a big safety pin at one corner. As I read I slipped off one sheet at a time so I only had one sheet to hold. When I finished, all were fastened together with the pin and ready to pass on to another patient. — LENA

DEAR POLLY — The perfect zipper pull for the cosmetic bags most of us carry in our purses is a small safety pin through which four or five more pins are fastened. Such a zipper pull is easy to grasp. When a button pops or a strap breaks while away from home, temporary repairs can be made with one or more of the pins. — MRS. D. V.

Kansas political figures hope Nixon will act quickly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hope that President Nixon will move rapidly to nominate a successor to Vice President Spiro Agnew who resigned Wednesday has been voiced by a number of Kansas political figures.

Astonishment at Agnew's resignation and his plea of no contest to a charge of federal income tax evasion, mingled with concern for the effect on the United States at home and abroad, were expressed.

In Washington, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he hoped the President would select a successor to Agnew quickly. He made no direct comment on Agnew's action.

Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., issued a statement saying he had received the news "with mixed emotions and a sense of sympathy for the vice president."

"At the same time," Pearson said, "I think there is a necessity to do all possible to restore a sense of national confidence in our governmental institutions."

Gov. Robert Docking, a Democrat, said, "I don't think this is a happy day or a pleasant day for any American. It is a dramatic event."

"My sincere hope is that the citizens of the United States, who for the past year or so have had their faith shaken in certain public officials, will still—although it may be difficult—retain their confidence in the many good public servants whose goal it is to serve honorably their fellow citizens."

Former Gov. Alf M. Landon, who was the Republican presidential nominee in 1936, said he was "not interested in the political question at all" but in its effect on the nation in the Middle East war.

"If the Middle East situation keeps developing as it has," Landon said, "we can well have a confrontation between our country and the Soviet Union over there that could lead to World War III."

Landon said the Agnew resignation "couldn't have happened at a worse time in our international affairs."

McDill "Huck" Boyd, Phillipsburg publisher and national Republican committeeman, said, "I'm astonished. It took me off guard. I certainly didn't anticipate anything like this."

"I regret the circumstances under which he resigned, but no one can condone income tax evasion at any level."

The majority leader of the Kansas House, Rep. Donn J. Everett, Manhattan Republican, called it a "national tragedy."

The president of the state Seante, Robert F. Bennett, also a Republican, said, "I'm totally disheartened, but I assume the vice president knew what he had to do and did it."

Rep. Garner Shriver, R-Kan., termed Agnew's resignation "an unfortunate happening" but said, "It is bst that the air has been cleared without undue delay. It is now important for the President to act with dispatch in nominating a vice presidential successor."

Rep. Bill Roy, D-Kan., issued a statement through his Topeka office: "The country is better off now that the cloud has been removed from the vice presidency."

"I earnestly hope the President will use this opportunity to restore confidence in government by appointing a highly qualified and respected, non-controversial person to the office of vice president."

Former Gov. and U.S. Sen. Frank Carlson of Concordia said he was not surprised by Agnew's resignation. "I really thought it would happen much earlier."

Carlson described Agnew as a "very sensitive man, a man of character, a great American."

Although Kansas political leaders said they hoped the President will move fast in naming a successor to Agnew, there were differing opinions on where he should find him.

Bennett said "the important thing is that the President and Congress come up with a replacement without letting it get involved in partisan politics. Personally, I would hope they would look to Congress and select someone who is knowledgeable and would be viewed by the people as beyond reproach."

Bennett said former Texas Gov. John Connally would fit his description, but Connally probably is unacceptable to congressional Democrats.

Everett urged that no one be chosen who might have presidential aspirations. He said he felt someone like New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, or "a man of like national stature" should be considered, but only if the person removed himself from 1976 presidential consideration.

Gov. Docking said, "As far as I am concerned, this is not a partisan matter. I would say it (Agnew's resignation) probably would not help the Republican party, but I don't know that it would aid the Democratic party as such."

Landon said there is a constitutional question in his mind involving the law enacted by Congress providing for the president to name a vice president when that office is vacant.

"It may require a Supreme Court decision," Landon said. "That was an act of Congress. Will the Supreme Court sustain it?"

Landon said he did not have anyone in mind as Agnew's successor

Denounces junta

Addressing the United Nations General Assembly Wednesday, Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa denounced the Chilean military junta which seized power last month and charged the United States with promoting the coup. Later when Chilean Ambassador Raul Bazan took the rostrum to reply, Roa led a charge of his delegation to the podium, shouting obscenities in Spanish, to try to prevent Bazan from speaking. (UPI)

People in the news

WASHINGTON (AP) — Career diplomat Carol C. Laise has been sworn in as assistant secretary of state for public affairs, the first woman to hold the post. She promptly received a kiss of congratulations from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Kissinger was informed at the Wednesday ceremony that the former ambassador to Laos and wife of Ambassador Elsworth Bunker was the first assistant secretary of state to be kissed on taking office. Kissinger responded with a broad smile.

"There is going to be more of that from now on."

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Officials have issued a child abandonment complaint against actress Sheila Scott. Her 4½-month-old boy had been found at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer gate with a note saying he was the responsibility of actor Chad Everett.

Miss Scott, 42, lost a Superior Court paternity suit in which she claimed Everett, star of the "Medical Center" television series, fathered the child.

The abandonment complaint was issued Wednesday by the Los Angeles County district attorney's office branch in Santa Monica.

MIAMI (AP) — An association of pickle packers say they have pondered the possibilities and finally picked a person for the post of vice president.

He is U.S. Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Texas.

A spokesman for the Pickle Packers International Association, meeting in Miami, says Pickle is astute, conscientious, thoughtful and deliberate.

New criminal code proposed for Missouri

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A proposed new criminal code for Missouri to replace the present "hodgepodge" of criminal laws and make the state's judicial machinery run smoother was made public here today after four years of work on it.

The code, less than half the length of the present criminal statutes, was unveiled at the annual meeting of the Missouri Bar. It was drafted by a special 14-member committee chaired by Norwin D. Houser, a commissioner on the Missouri Supreme Court.

"It repeals many obsolete statutes regulating conduct of a by-gone age," said Houser. "It repeals the laws which are now unconstitutional by reason of the decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court."

The legislature will be asked to enact the code during its next session, beginning in January. If this occurs, it will be the first time since 1835 for the state to overhaul its criminal laws.

The proposed new code would reduce the number of criminal sections from 491 to 238, make penalties more uniform, have judges do the sentencing rather than juries, and replace out-moded 19th century legalese with language "the cop on the beat can understand," said Houser.

Law Enforcement Assistance Council funds were used to help finance the study, the first year of which was spent researching and cataloging the present laws. The broad-based committee was composed of judges, lawyers and legislators, but had to be reappointed because many members could not devote four years to the project.

Houser, who was chairman of the committee the entire period, said it became apparent early that many of the laws were archaic, redundant, inconsistent or "downright ridiculous."

The committee found some penalties too severe and some too lenient. A person convicted for stealing chickens at night can be sentenced to 10 years in prison, while one guilty of assault with intent to kill cannot get more than five years.

Tossed out are vague, general, undefined terms referring to mental states, such as: corruptly, falsely, feloniously, knowingly, wilfully, maliciously, cruelly and wrongfully.

The proposed code reduces mental states to four, saying criminal acts must be done with: purpose, knowledge, recklessness or criminal negligence. Each is clearly defined.

Felonies would be classified into four groups, according to the seriousness, and misdemeanors into three groups. "A more logical and humane system of criminal justice is put into effect which fits the punishment to the crime," Houser said.

He said the absence of "legal gobbledegook" will probably increase the number of guilty pleas and cut down the number of appeals. "All of this needless grinding of the judicial machinery will stop if our code is adopted," he said.

The committee studied criminal codes of 15 other states, the modern penal code of the American Law Institute and a newly-drafted federal penal code.

The proposal includes a far-reaching provision aimed at rehabilitation of those convicted. Sentences would be automatically reviewed to ensure uniformity around the state and the last one-third of an inmate's sentence would have to be served outside the prison, but under supervision.

Houser said this is aimed at reducing recidivism by writing into the law provisions for parole and rehabilitation, rather than allowing convicts to serve their "flat time" and go back into society without supervision.

Egyptian students ready to join war

CAIRO (AP) — Ahmed Hassan, a Cairo University student, says he purposely failed two courses last term to avoid being drafted, but now is eager to get in the army to join in the Middle East fighting.

"I am finishing my exams today, and tomorrow I will join the army," Hassan, a senior engineering student, said Wednesday.

The Cairo University campus has been the scene of recent antigovernment demonstrations, with many of its 100,000 students demanding an end to the state of no war but no peace.

"The outbreak of fighting means that we and the president have the same goals but differed on the time," said one of the students charged in the earlier disturbances.

The student was referring to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Declining to give his name, the student said he and a law faculty colleague were surprised at the Egyptian military action after Sadat intimated last July that action against Israel might not be taken for as long as 20 years because of the developing Soviet-American detente.

One university official said, "All our students are waiting to be called to liberate our lands from the Israeli criminals. Girls are volunteering to give blood and work as nurses."

Ibrahim Ali, a commercial student, said it was difficult taking exams while the fighting raged.

"With two brothers in the army, I interrupt my studies to listen to military communiques on the radio every hour," he said. "But the victory of my country is worth not only my exams, but my life."

Convicted man has 30 days to file

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP) — Richard Eugene Harley, a 28-year-old former security guard in Cleveland, has 30 days to file for a new trial or appeal the murder conviction delivered here Wednesday.

Harley, who also used the name Stephen Allen Young, was convicted by a Jasper County Circuit Court jury of first-degree murder in the slaying of a supermarket clerk taken hostage in a holdup July 9 at Joplin.

Mrs. Barbara Conrey, 36, from nearby Spring City, died from a bullet wound at the base of the skull. She suffered the wound after Joplin police thwarted an escape attempt with roadblocks and exchanged gunfire with her abductor.

The verdict by the jury of nine men and three women, returned after 22 minutes of deliberation, means an automatic life prison term. Max Patten, Jasper County prosecuting attorney, said after the trial he intends to prosecute Harley on two other charges stemming from the aborted supermarket holdup last summer—first-degree robbery and kidnapping.

Convictions on these charges, Patten said, would give the court the responsibility of setting Harley's punishment.

Harley was identified by two employees as the holdup man who took $4,800 from the store. An FBI laboratory technician testified the bullet that killed Mrs. Conrey was fired from a .22 caliber pistol found at the scene.

Joplin police found Harley had served time at the Kentucky Reformatory at La Salle and was paroled to Cleveland where he eventually was employed by Manufacturers Patrol Service, which provides security for apartment houses.

Harley was quoted by police as saying he stopped in Joplin early July 9 on his way to Las Vegas and Los Angeles.

UAW strike on Ford threatened

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union says it will strike Ford Motor Co. on Oct. 26 if a new national contract is not reached by Oct. 22.

UAW president Leonard Woodcock said Wednesday the decision was made by the union's Ford Bargaining Committee.

The UAW's Ford contract expired on Sept. 14, but it was extended on a day-to-day basis while the union settled national, Canadian and local contracts with Chrysler.

UAW vice president Ken Bannon said he hoped the walkout would not be necessary. But he served notice that if no contract settlement was made by Oct. 22 "the union would be free to take any action that is necessary in the absence of a new agreement."

The union has held some bargaining sessions with Ford, but the deadline announcement was expected to push the bargaining into high gear.

"We're going to work awfully hard" at a settlement, Bannon said. "We think it can be done. We'd like to avoid a strike."

Under the extension agreement, the union must give Ford three days notice in the event it decides to strike.

Florida police force has 18-year-old cops

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Six months ago, 18-year-old Danny Steele was a rock band electrician who didn't think too much of cops. Today, he's the youngest patrolman on the Sunrise Police Force.

Bernie Loos, also 18, wears the uniform of the nearby Pembroke Pines Police Department, and Chief Orlando Natri says Loos is a sharp cop who's "18 going on 40."

Local officials believe Steele and Loos are the first 18-year-olds to become policemen since the state lowered the age of majority from 21 to 18 last July.

Steele, a 1973 high school graduate, says he had the usual teen-ager's disdain for the police until he started looking for a career.

"I wanted to do something that would help people, a job that would have some value," he said. "The more I saw of it, the more I realized that was police work."

Steele, who is assigned to a patrol car in the Fort Lauderdale suburb, hasn't made an arrest in his first two weeks as a policeman. But on his first day on the job, he climbed into a burning van to pull an accident victim to safety.

"I got shook afterwards," he said, "but I didn't have time to be scared when I was doing it."

Steele says civilians haven't commented on his age, adding, "The trouble isn't my age. It's just that some people don't have any respect for a police uniform."

Loos attends Broward Community College in his off-duty time. He started as a policeman 11 days ago. On his second night on the job he was called to the scene of a burglary, where he tackled a fleeing suspect.

"I was scared to death, scared to death," says Loos, the son of a Hollywood, Fla., police sergeant. "Later, we found a knife in one of the man's pockets."

Natri says several other men under 21 have applied for jobs, "and I think it's good," he adds. "An 18-year-old who applies is screened much tighter than an older man, so you get the exceptional kids."

Student reports

Two senior physics majors at William Jewell College, Liberty, recently returned from Sioux City, Iowa, when they presented papers at a conference held at Dordt Center College.

The two included Nick Fowler, 1321 State Fair Blvd., who reported on "The Washington Meeting of the Society of Physics Council." The other student was Tom Lehman, Kansas City.

Sterilization for young singles increasing

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

More and more young single people, convinced they will never want to have children, are asking to be sterilized.

Hospitals in cities such as Boston, Washington, New York, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and St. Louis say they have noted definite increases within the last few years in requests for vasectomies and tubal ligations or laporoscopies from the under-30 and unmarried.

In most cases, the operations are irreversible.

In the last five years, there has been a four-to-five-fold increase in tubal ligations, mainly among single women. Vasectomies have increased too," said Dr. Clay Burchell, staff physician at Hartford Hospital.

The Association for Voluntary Sterilization reports that almost five million men and women in America have been sterilized. In the past, this form of birth control was sought primarily by older, married people with several children.

The association says that now 50 per cent of requests for information about sterilization come from the single and childless.

The singles who have been sterilized say they gave the operation considerable thought before going through with it. They say they don't want children because of concern for overpopulation, career priorities, or lack of interest in raising a family. Most have no plans to marry.

Few worried that they would ever regret having been sterilized and said they could always adopt if in the future they wanted a child.

Sterilization is legal in all states, but the unmarried often encounter difficulties when asking to be sterilized. Some hospitals have restrictive policies concerning the age and marital status of applicants and doctors say they are reluctant to sterilize someone young enough to possibly regret the operation within a few years.

"Sterilization is strictly an agreement between the doctor and the patient, but I think most doctors would feel that a young, unmarried person is just not in a position to make that kind of irrevocable decision, in view of the long-term social, emotional and physical repercussions," said Dr. Ervin Nichols, associate director of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Even doctors who say everyone should have the right to be sterilized if they so choose often urge psychiatric counselling for the young and single before a final commitment to perform the operation.

"Some people really do have their heads together at age 25 and can make rational decisions about such important matters," said Ira Niger of Planned Parenthood in New York, which now performs vasectomies in some of its clinics. "But every case is judged on its individual merits. In-depth interviewing and counselling is very important," he said.

Wendy Hamilton, 24 and single, had a laparoscopy a few months ago. It cost her $200, was done in a hospital under general anaesthesia and she was discharged the next day. She said she had been thinking about being sterilized since she was 17.

"I just knew I'd never want to have children," she said. "Other forms of birth control were so inconvenient and risky and I was always terrified of becoming pregnant."

"I'm very concerned about overpopulation and feel that if ever I should want children, the only moral thing to do would be to adopt," said Miss Hamilton, a secretary in New York who was one of three children.

She said she tells dates that she doesn't want to have children and noted that lately she has met many men her age who feel the same way.

Margot Champagne has always felt she wouldn't have the time and patience for a child. A 26-year-old Washington attorney who says she never wants to marry, Margot said, "I love children but I'm not willing to make a sacrifice for them. My career is very important to me ...

"I guess one is never 100 per cent sure about it all, especially at this age. I'm sure I'll be missing a great deal of joy and fun in watching my own child grow up, but I couldn't have a career and raise a child successfully."

Her advice to someone thinking about sterilization: "If you're at all ambivalent, don't do it."

Steven Keese had a vasectomy three years ago when he was 27. He is a project planner for the Pre-Term Institute in Boston and is on the board of the Association for Voluntary Sterilization.

"What I wanted to do with my life couldn't be done while raising children," said Keese. "Even with the best intentions, I think it would be very difficult for me to be a good parent."

Years ago he thought he'd have a vasectomy after he had two children. But then he decided against having any children and now says he does not plan to marry.

Heroic dog

Bobby Ring, 10, pets his German Shepherd "Fraulein" after the dog received the American Humane Association's 1973 award for heroism. The award was presented by Carmelita Pope, pet ambassador for the Pet Food Institute. Fraulein saved the boy's life by standing in front of an oncoming bus, causing the bus to swerve around the dog and the boy. Bobby, confined to a wheelchair at the time, had wheeled onto the road and did not see the oncoming bus. Bobby lives in suburban Chicago. (UPI)

High cash markets attract wheat farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is letting farmers know through local offices that government price support loans are available on 1973 crops and can provide a measure of financial comfort to growers.

But statistics show that wheat farmers, for example, are being attracted much more by recently high cash market prices. In Kansas, the Sept. 15 average price of wheat paid farmers was $4.52 per bushel, compared with the government's national price support loan rate of $1.25 per bushel.

As of Sept. 1, according to USDA, only 28.5 million bushels of new-crop wheat nationally was under price support loan, about half of what farmers had under loan a year earlier from 1972 production.

The higher cash market prices, for other commodities as well as wheat, have caused many farmers to sell outright rather than go through the procedures to get support loans.

Officials in the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service have sent to state and county offices a series of sample news releases aimed at reminding producers how the loan programs operate.

"Producers may find advantages in the loan program for interim crop income if they plan to sell at a later date, thus providing themselves with greater independence in their crop marketing," one of the proposed news releases said.

There was a cautionary note, however, in the statement that said ASCS "is not in a position to tell farmers when or how to market" their crops.

"Even though market prices are above loan, it's good business for producers to be aware of the marketing options available to them," the agency said.

4-H news

Three Pettis County 4-H club members placed first in the recent Missouri 4-H Horse Show here, according to Bob Heitmeier, area youth specialist for the Extension Division.

First place winners were Randy Wells in Class 6, mare and foal, 1973, 14 and over; Richie England, Class 20, fox trot, 13 and under; and Terri Green, Class 26, barrel race, over 50 inches, 14 and over.

Several other area club members placed from second through fifth in various aspects of the competition.

The Pettis County 4-H Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 18 in the Assembly Room of the courthouse. Among the evening's business will be the nominations committee's report, installation of the 1974 Council officers, plans for a 4-H recognition night and 4-H Council finance.

Vote home rule for Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to turn most of Washington, D.C., into a largely self-governed city, creating a special federal enclave out of certain government areas.

The new enclave would cover the Capitol, White House, Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and five military posts. It would be run by a presidentially appointed director.

The rest of the city would be run by a locally elected mayor and city council for the first time since 1874, although Congress would control its budget.

The House approved the self-government bill 343 to 74.

Pettis County OATS officers elected

Members and officers of the Pettis County Committee for the Older Adults Transportation System (OATS) were elected Wednesday night at a meeting at the Municipal Building City Council chambers.

Unanimously re-elected as committee chairman was Carl Franklin. Mrs. W. C. Jones, LaMonte, was selected vice-chairman and Mrs. Diane Pilant was chosen secretary-treasurer. All officers were elected to one-year terms.

Committee members elected for two-year terms were: Mrs. Virgil Quint, Smithton; Mrs. Dorothy Hinken, Green Ridge; Rhoda Dowling, Bothwell Hotel; Oscar Lawson, 631 North Osage. Mrs. Jones and Franklin.

Committee members serving one-year terms will be Anna M. Moreman, 2102 South Kentucky; Gertrude Chaney, 612 North Quincy; Ruth Henderson, 1620 South Kentucky; Jim Cunningham, 1518 East Tenth; Mrs. Joe Phillips, Hughesville; and Mrs. Frank Butler, 604 South Kentucky.

Franklin indicated that in the future, all committee members will be elected for two-year terms, assuring a continued staggered term influence on committee makeup.

Methods of improving OATS services were discussed and it was announced that reservations for a planned trip to Arrow Rock this Saturday must be made by calling the OATS office in the Municipal Building between 1 and 3 p.m. Friday. Franklin said arrangements are proceeding for a later trip to Silver Dollar City, Mo.

The chairman said he would call a meeting of the committee within 30 days to discuss improving service and increasing membership. He said the authority now exists to appoint persons to serve on the OATS committee if it is determined some areas of the county are not represented adequately.

Franklin said that response to the transportation service has been better, on a percentage basis, in rural areas of the county. He indicated a city-subsidized taxi cab plan might be responsible for the present slow response by elderly Sedalians to the program. Franklin added that he planned to call some future OATS meetings during the daytime hours, making it easier for the elderly to attend.

It was indicated that donations to help finance the program might be solicited in the future. Franklin said that any donations gathered locally would be sent to the state OATS office, Columbia, and would be augmented by a three-to-one matching funds plan. He added that 85 per cent of locally-donated monies would be returned to the county with the matching funds for specific use in backing the OATS program here.

Franklin again emphasized at the meeting that the cost of the OATS program is virtually non-existent to area taxpayers.

Ann Landers

Reader sends poem asking mercy death

Dear Ann Landers: I was struck by the poignancy of the poem by R. B. Richards, Palos Verdes Estates, Calif., "Pardon Me, Doctor, But May I Die?" The old gentleman had buried his wife, most of his friends were gone, his children were grown and on their own, his work was done, he was tired and sick — very sick — and he asked the doctor to take away all those tubes and machines and let him go in peace. That plea was one I hope will make an impact on doctors everywhere.

I have another poem, which I hope you will print.

Put Out the Flame
"I do not fear death, dear physician,
As much as I fear the indignity
Of hideous deterioration."
Thus Euthanasia's friend spoke openly.

"Kind doctor, when that certain time arrives,
When I am not productive anymore,
Or cannot add to any fellow's lives,
Or with excruciating pain am sore —
Then I beseech thee in God's holy name,
Perform thy greater Hippocratic role.

The hour unknown to me, put out the flame
Within my body and release my soul.
To take its journey to that Reservoir
Where all departed souls and angels are."

— Boston Globe Reader

Dear Reader: Sorry, but there's a big difference between keeping a terminally ill person alive through extraordinary measures, and "putting out the flame."

To "put out the flame" suggests, to me at least, that something be done to end a life.

I am not in favor of this. The old gentleman who pleads, "Let me die," is asking that the flame be permitted to go out, but to PUT it out is to end a life, and no man has the right to do this.

Dear Ann Landers: There's a certain little high-fanned blonde in this office who pretends to be Miss Goody Two-Shoes of the Prudential Building. Some of the stories we've heard about her from the last bunch of girls she worked with don't add up to the Virtuous Miss she is portraying.

Several of us have noticed that every Thursday she wears the same dress or pantsuit she wore on Wednesday, also her hair is, a mess. This has happened four Thursdays in a row. We have concluded that the gal has a steady arrangement and doesn't sleep home on Wednesday nights.

Should I be a pal and tip her off that we know, and to at least take a different blouse or skirt along and wear a hairnet? — Friend In Need

Dear Friend (?): I'd hate to believe that every girl who is wearing the same dress or pantsuit today that she wore yesterday didn't sleep home last night. If you want to be a pal, keep your mouth shut and suggest that the other cats in the office do the same.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key To Popularity." Send 35 cents in coin with your request

Strauss says Democrats closer to effective unity

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Robert Strauss became chairman of the Democratic National Committee, he started the toughest tight-rope act of his political career. Now he sees only a few more perilous steps to a rebuilt party.

After 10 months on the job, Strauss says the party is closer to effective unity than it was before its slide to electoral disaster in the 1972 presidential campaign.

"I think we've come a long way," Strauss said in an interview. "Insofar as Democrats generally are concerned, this is not a greatly divided party, as it was in the fall of 1972."

However, Strauss acknowledges a major problem remains, and it's one of the big ones over which the Democrats split in the first place — party reform.

Meanwhile, Strauss points to the following steps in his restoration project:

—A rebuilding of the party machinery and creation of a special campaign committee to help party candidates in 1974.

—Payment of a staggering party debt.

—Greater communication with Democratic congressional leaders and governors.

—Creation of an advisory council to give voice to elected Democrats, who had complained of being slighted in 1972.

"We've got to go through reform and continue reform," Strauss said. "Unfortunately, or fortunately, 99 per cent of the Democrats don't care anything about hearing anything about that. They're sick of it."

"...We have to continue to reform and improve," Strauss said. "It appears we need new guidelines."

Strauss says the party's Commission on Delegate Selection and Party Structure must blunt the controversial rule that required fixed quotas of women and minorities in state delegations at the party's 1972 national convention.

The commission also is wrestling with the question of how to eliminate winner-take-all presidential primaries and apportion convention delegate strength among presidential candidates in relation to their popular support.

Strauss successfully weathered the most dangerous crisis of his chairmanship so far when he personally mediated a compromise this past weekend after a reform commission's drafting committee had broken up in a spat over the quota question.

Now, the compromise, rolling back the language which spelled quotas in 1972 but keeping requirements for state parties to encourage minority participation, is generally expected to gain approval from the full commission and the national committee.

A Texan elected with the heavy backing of some anti-reform elements, party conservatives, labor and other old-guard Democrats, Strauss faced skepticism among reformers.

In a gesture to the party establishment, some of whom had defected to the GOP last year, Strauss named 22 new members to the reform commission to give their views a stronger voice.

But, when the same faction asked his help in a drive to pack the commission by doubling its size, he refused, despite a push from some of the very people to whom he owed his chairmanship.

"Those people who were reformers and those people who were regulars all are substantially now in accord," Strauss said.

"So, I think, when we finish this reform process in the next few months, that we will have the last real mean issue behind us."

After that, Strauss said, it should be easier to concentrate on beating Republicans instead of refereeing between Democrats.

"In the first place," he said, "what I call the cultural issues — amnesty, abortion, marijuana, the war — have been muted by events or by courts or by time, and we are now all trying to talk about the same things."

"We have reordered our priorities," he said.

"The priorities are the same the American public has. We're talking about health, inflation, energy, transportation, defense."

"These are the kinds of issues that you can have divergent opinions on and articulate them and debate them and win or lose votes on, and they're not so emotional and so divisive as these others."

A massive party debt has been plaguing the Democrats since the 1968 elections.

A fund-raising telethon last month brought in $6 million in pledges, and the organizational effort that went into it created a communications network Strauss hopes to continue.

"We put together a party machinery that was the most detailed communications apparatus ever harnessed, even in a presidential campaign," Strauss said. "We were in daily communication with almost every state for a period of two weeks."

Strauss also has created a party campaign organization, headed by Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, to help Democratic candidates at all levels.

"It's been in all types of states, large and small, been with liberal, moderate and conservative groups and has been unanimously acclaimed as one of the best things we've done," Strauss said.

Strauss himself probably works more closely with party leadership in Congress and the statehouses than most of his predecessors. He visits the Capitol on the average of once a week to talk strategy and keep lines open.

Elected Democratic officeholders, many of whom lost their delegate seats at the 1972 convention because of the reform rules, have been given a new vehicle of influence in the National Advisory Council, which discusses and articulates party thought on key issues.

Street widened

A street-widening operation is currently underway at Third and Park, the tricky, awkward intersection in front of Liberty Park. The city street department plans to finish pouring the curb on Wednesday but indicated that it would be at least two or three days before the entire operation was complete. The work was started on Tuesday. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Workshops take law as topic

A "Law in Missouri" workshop will be held, free of charge, on three consecutive Mondays beginning Oct. 22 in the East Room of the Sedalia Public Library.

The workshops, to begin at 7 p.m., are sponsored by the University of Missouri Extension Service in cooperation with the Missouri Bar Association and are geared for persons who would like more information regarding Missouri law and how it affects family financial planning.

Each of the workshops will be presented by a representative of the Pettis County Bar Association.

The first topic, Oct. 22, will be legal aspects of insurance and will be presented by Earl T. Crawford. The talk will cover such subjects as insurance in general, regulations of insurance, and agents and brokers.

On Oct. 29, Robert Fritz will discuss estate planning for the average family. He will explain why an estate should be planned, exactly what an estate is and property insurance.

The Nov. 5 meeting will feature attorney S. P. Harlan, who will cover such subjects as keeping adequate records, legal aspects of settling an estate and keeping wives informed of their legal rights in the event of the death of their husbands.

Each program is scheduled to last about two hours.

What will help bursitis?

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have suffered for a number of years with bursitis in each of my shoulders, at different times. I would like your opinion of the best way of treating this painful affliction. In the past I have had cortisone in pill form and in shot form, but I am hesitant to take this powerful drug in fear of what it can do to the body. Do you consider cortisone harmful for one who might need it about once a year? Can it harm the bone structure?

Dear Reader — Painful shoulders are difficult to treat. Most of them are not arthritis, and commonly whatever the cause it is referred to as bursitis. The joints are encased with a thin membrane much like plastic wrapping material that literally encapsulates the area. Inside this sac-like structure is the joint fluid. The sac itself is called a bursa. When it is inflamed it is bursitis.

Usually the tendons or the bursa-like sacs around them, called tendon sheaths, are involved. Arthritis of the shoulder joint alone is seldom the cause of shoulder pain. Arthritis of the neck and a cervical disk can cause painful shoulders.

During the episode, as you well know, there is soreness of the muscles and often difficulty in moving the arm.

Opinions differ on how best to treat the condition, and I don't think anyone has the final answer. The most important goal, is to relieve the pain as much as possible without causing any harm. Aspirin is often used. Local heat is used, and finally when the acute condition permits it, light exercises are employed to maintain the full range of the shoulder joint. I think this latter measure is particularly important. To do this you should swing the arms around and around in a back stroke motion the full range possible for you. Then swing them forward as in a forward motion. You are not interested in endurance or strength, or how long you can do it, just in maintaining the full range of motion.

Cortisone has been used for this condition and is advocated by many. It can be given either by mouth or by injection. Most doctors feel they get better results from the injection. Often it will not control the problem with only one or two shots. In any case, if you don't have to use it over too long a period, once a year is not likely to harm you in any way or affect your bones.

Dear Dr. Lamb — You mentioned soybeans helping to take the place of meat in providing amino acids. Do roasted soybeans from the health centers contain the same amount of proteins as prepared in other forms?

Dear Reader — Roasted soybeans are fine. There are many other ways soybeans and soybean products can be used in food preparation. I have one word of caution about roasted soybeans — be sure they are dry roasted and read the label carefully. Some of the products are roasted in coconut oil, and as I have stated before, coconut oil is very rich in saturated fat which should be limited in the interest of preventing heart and vascular disease.

Friendly tots

While Tony Meyer, right, 13-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Meyer, 506 South Summit, wandered around waiting for his mother in the Municipal Building Monday, he noticed 14-month-old Darrell Keeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Keeler, 159 Waterbury Ridge, who was also looking the place over. The tots apparently tried to compare notes on the new building but found it difficult because of a large glass door separating the two. Tony's reflection in the door appears to give Darrell a double image.

A new conference of junior colleges

The Board of Trustees of State Fair Community College has taken the first necessary step toward creation of a new conference of junior colleges that holds great promise, athletically and academically.

On Monday the board voted to join a proposed conference of Missouri and Kansas community colleges involving nine schools. Besides State Fair, members would include Longview, Maple Woods and Penn Valley Community Colleges in Kansas City; Trenton Junior College, Trenton, Mo.; and four colleges in Kansas: Johnson County Community College, Overland Park; Highland Community College, Highland; Haskell Indian Junior College, Lawrence; and Kansas City, Kan., Community College.

Besides offering keen athletic competition, the conference would greatly cut down on the costs and time involved in transporting SFCC teams under the present set-up.

The conference would have a combined enrollment of nearly 21,000 students, and would represent the largest inter-collegiate rivalry in a 125-mile radius of metropolitan Kansas City, according to promoters.

Backers of the Missouri-Kansas junior college conference are quick to point out that the advantages would go well beyond athletics. Dr. Wallace E. Galluzzi, superintendent of Haskell Junior College and chairman of a study committee investigating the conference, said the arrangement would permit "sharing of institutional resources for a variety of academic, cultural and social activities." He called it "an economical way to expand the educational comprehensiveness of the colleges without a great expenditure of financial resources."

The potential for such activities is almost limitless, and could include concerts, debate, drama, and artistic events, visiting lecturers, exhibits and shows. Athletic competition could expand and flourish among the nine schools tied together by a common bond.

We hope the boards of the other junior colleges in the proposed conference lose no time in getting behind the idea.

A nice cause for Common Cause

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — If there is one cause that traditionally has been close to the heart of every truly liberal outfit, it is the cause of free speech. Common Cause, beyond peradventure, is a truly liberal outfit. If the directors of Common Cause want to pursue a nice cause close at home, they might take up the matter of free speech within their own operations.

This suggestion arises from a recent curious incident in Connecticut. It is not the greatest story that ever failed to make the evening news, but it casts a revealing light upon contemporary liberalism in action.

It seems that the League of Women Voters in Fairfield, Conn., decided to launch its autumn season with a full-dress public forum on a major issue in the news: the public financing of federal elections. The League arranged to hold the program on Oct. 8 at Sacred Heart College in Bridgeport, and began lining up sponsors to help foot the bill.

Common Cause agreed to contribute modestly to the venture, and thus became a co-sponsor.

Mrs. Phyllis B. Hayes, president of the Fairfield League, began putting the program together. The idea was to have a principal speaker who would respond to the questions and views of a supporting panel. Somewhere around the first of September, Mrs. Hayes telephoned Professor Ralph Winter Jr. of the Yale School of Law, and explained delicately that the League's budget would not afford a big-name speaker from Washington. Would Professor Winter himself undertake to give the principal speech? He agreed.

Winter's credentials were excellent. A former senior fellow at the Brookings Institution, he serves as a special consultant to the Subcommittee on Separation of Powers of the Senate Judiciary Committee. He has written and spoken on the financing of federal campaigns, and has testified on pending bills dealing with election reform. There was but one thing wrong: Common Cause supports public financing, and Professor Winter opposes it.

Let him continue the story: "In all my conversations with Mrs. Hayes, I warned her that some of the co-sponsors might object to my speaking because I disagreed with their position on the issues. She told me that it did not matter because the League chose the speaker, that the meeting was not intended to be a forum for the sponsoring groups but rather an open discussion of the issues, and that the other interested groups would in any event be represented on a panel that was to question me..."

"On Tuesday, September 18, Mrs. Ernest Stuckel called me and informed me that some co-sponsors had announced that they would withdraw their support for the meeting if I were the principal speaker. She said that in particular, Common Cause was 'very unhappy.' She further stated that because the meeting could not be held without the financial support from these sponsors that my invitation was canceled, although they would permit me to sit as a

How Firm a Foundation

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — F. Donald Nixon, the President's irrepressible brother, showed up in the Dominican Republic in October, 1969, to talk business with President Joaquin Balaguer.

In a back room of the presidential palace, they discussed what Donald could do for the Dominican Republic and what the Dominicans could do for Donald.

Out of the powwow came mining concessions for Donald and an opportunity to build a luxury apartment complex on government-owned ocean frontage in Santo Domingo.

In return, Balaguer wanted Donald to use his influence with the White House. Recalls businessman John Meier, who accompanied Donald Nixon to Santo Domingo:

"Balaguer was talking in front of a group of people, and he was blunt about it. He said he needed White House help in his election, and he said he needed a bigger share of the sugar quota.

"Later on, when everybody was outside, Balaguer said something to his interpreter, and the interpreter came over and whispered to Don. Balaguer and Don then went to the back room and closed the door."

The following year, the Dominican sugar quota was increased from 458,000 to 515,000 tons. And two veteran Republican campaigners, Clifton White and ex-Rep. Donald "Buz" Lukens, went to Santo Domingo during Balaguer's election campaign.

Three witnesses have sworn to us in affidavits that they heard Donald say he never embarked on his business adventures without first checking with the President.

But White House sources tell us the President was so concerned about Donald's wheeling and dealing that he asked aide John Ehrlichman to keep an eye on Donald and, finally, ordered a tap on Donald's telephone.

Ehrlichman became particularly

Merry-go-round

Dominican venture by Donald Nixon

suspicious of Donald's dealings with Meier, formerly a business aide of billionaire Howard Hughes.

Once, Ehrlichman asked the President's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, to fly to Las Vegas to check on Meier. Another time, the President's friend, Bebe Rebozo, telephoned Hughes' headquarters in Las Vegas and demanded that Meier be kept away from Donald.

Subsequently, Rebozo made another call to Hughes' headquarters and angrily reported that his informants had just told him Meier and Donald were together at that moment at the Orange County airport.

Meier was subsequently sued by Hughes, who charged his former associate with skimming off profits from mining claims. Meier is also under indictment in Nevada on tax evasion charges. He claims the charges are politically motivated and are an outgrowth of the White House phone taps on Donald.

My associate George Clifford flew to Vancouver, British Columbia, to talk to Meier about the Dominican deal. "We were in the Dominican Republic looks at deals," confirmed Meier. "Donald toured the property we were offered for the apartments. He did all the talking with Balaguer."

Clifford also flew to New York City to see businessman Thomas E. Murray Jr., who made the arrangements for the Dominican trip.

"They took us on a helicopter tour of properties that were possible sites for real estate development," recalled Murray. "But our main purpose was to have the minister of mining come up with an area for exploration for us."

In Los Angeles, Clifford questioned Arthur Blech, the certified accountant who handles President Nixon's taxes and who also prepared the proposal for the Santo Domingo apartment deal.

The proposal, obtained by us, envisioned "10,000 apartment units (garden type), two and three bedrooms... The land (250 acres) would be transferred to a Joint Venture (corporation) by the Dominican government free and clear of any encumbrances and also improved with all the necessary streets, curbs (offsite improvements) and utilities..."

Interviewed at his posh office near the LaBrea tar pits, Blech insisted that Donald wasn't involved in the housing deal and that he alone discovered the site while visiting the Dominican Republic with Meier.

Our sources say Donald still has an interest in the mines, called Las Canitas, which are rich in manganese and copper. The housing venture, however, has fallen through. Donald refused to comment when reached by telephone.

FOOTNOTE: Donald Nixon was given the red carpet treatment during his Santa Domingo visit. His party took over an entire floor of a fashionable hotel, and President Balaguer posted 30 armed guards in the hotel to protect them. Balaguer also gave them a view of the island's entire coastline from former Dictator Rafael Trujillo's 350-foot yacht, with the chief of the Dominican navy aboard. Finally, there was a sit-down dinner at the presidential palace. Some 600 guests, including the diplomatic corps and the military brass, stood in line to shake hands with Donald.

How labor protests in Japan

WASHINGTON — If anyone is wondering why the Japanese are leading the world in productivity, I think I may have a clue.

Buchwald

A friend of mine was visiting a factory in Tokyo that makes television sets. As he was being taken on the tour, he noticed that the Japanese workers were wearing headbands painted a bright red.

"What is the significance of the red headband?" my friend asked the manager who was showing him around.

"The workers are on strike and that is their way of telling us."

"But if they are on strike, why are they working?"

The manager seemed amazed at the question. "If they didn't work they wouldn't get paid, and we would lose production. This would never do."

"So instead of going out they wear their red headbands?"

"Yes. That's to let us know they are unhappy. Naturally we are very disturbed that they are unhappy, so we try to negotiate the grievances."

"Is the red band the only way you know they're unhappy?"

The manager answered, "No, they show their discontent in many ways. For example, when they're on strike they come to work 15 minutes early and they stand in the courtyard and sing songs telling of their unhappiness with the management. It's very sad for management to hear these songs because it means we have not done the right things for our workers. The songs hurt us more than the red headbands."

"Do they sabotage the TV sets they're assembling?"

The manager was aghast. "That would not be an honorable thing to do. As a matter of fact, they work even harder and with more proficiency to show how unhappy they are. The better they perform, the more unhappy we are in management become and the more eager we are to reach a settlement."

"I know you Americans will never understand this, but it is a terrible thing to come to work in the morning and hear your entire labor force singing songs against you. It is also very sad to walk among the workers as we are doing now and know that although they are doing their jobs with fervor, their hearts are not in it."

"Will they speak to you while they're on strike?" my friend asked.

"Oh, yes, they will speak to me," the manager replied, "and no one will mention in the conversation that they are on strike. But I know and they know what the situation is and it's very uncomfortable for all of us. When a strike takes place, the management has many soul-searching meetings to discover what we did wrong. It is a great loss of face in this country to have your workers on strike."

"Have you ever had a strike where the workers have refused to go to work?"

"Not in our plant. But American labor methods slowly are being brought to Japan by some radical leaders. Not long ago the subway workers went out on strike."

"That must have caused havoc," my friend said.

"Not exactly," the manager replied. "They went out at 3 a.m. on Sunday for a half-hour so they would inconvenience the least number of passengers."

"It would be marvelous if Japan would teach American labor leaders their methods," my friend said. "All it would cost the unions over here would be the price of red headbands. I can just see the United Auto Workers singing antimanagement songs in the courtyard of the Ford Motor Co."

The manager checked a list of production figures someone handed him. "Just as I thought," he said, "we're up 10 per cent this week."

"When do you think the strike will be over?" my friend asked.

"I hope soon," the manager said sadly. "Management can't take the pressure much longer."

Student killed in school fire

PITTSBURG, Kan. (AP) — One student at Pittsburg State College was killed and another was overcome by smoke early today when fire broke out on the second floor of a rooming and apartment house near the campus.

Rodney Fisk, 24, Winfield, Kan., was dead on arrival at Mt. Carmel Medical Center.

Stephen Baden, 21, of rural Winfield, Kan., was admitted for the treatment of smoke inhalation and was reported in satisfactory condition.

Firemen were called at 12:30 a. m. and managed to confine the blaze to Fisk's room, authorities said.

Neighbors led four other occupants of the second floor to safety. The cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

Suspension discussed at meeting

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — Officials of the Board of Education in this southeast Missouri community and parents of 38 pupils at Central High School met today in an effort to resolve the situation that led to the pupils' suspension Wednesday.

But Wade Callicutt, assistant superintendent of schools, said he expected the pupils to remain out of class through the rest of the week.

"There's still some tension at the school," Callicutt said.

The 38 black youths were suspended for an indefinite period Wednesday after staging a demonstration over charges that blacks receive more stringent disciplinary measures than whites.

The teen-agers were suspended, authorities said, after they refused to end the protest and go to class. More than 1,200 pupils attend Central High School.

Report little revamp progress

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Four leaders of the Missouri Senate reported little progress Wednesday after a private meeting with Gov. Christopher S. Bond to discuss new legislation to reorganize the executive branch of state government.

Bond asked the meeting be closed to the news media and Sen. William J. Cason agreed.

although he told reporters he preferred it be open.

Afterward, Bond and the Senators spoke separately to reporters and said the only area of agreement concerned how various agencies should be relocated in newly-created departments.

Bond vetoed a reorganization bill passed by the legislature last June and has been urged by some lawmakers to call a special session to deal with reorganization.

The major differences between the governor and senators remained the same following the meeting, both sides said. These include:

The number of state officials whose appointments should be subject to Senate confirmation and how much autonomy certain commissions, divisions and agencies should have.

Banks offer various enticements for money

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

CHICAGO (AP) — You might see your banking future in the displays at the McCormick Place convention center here. The American Bankers Association is holding its annual meeting, and what do you suppose they've attracted?

Racks of dishes and "silverware" displays of stuffed dolls, trays of jewelry. There are Bible salesmen and salesmen of hand-lettered scrolls, and a manufacturer of chimes and carillons who wants banks to ring in the nation's bicentennial.

The Christmas display companies are demonstrating how with holly and wreaths and candy canes and trees, a bank can transform itself into the spirit of Santa Claus. Christmas is a time for spending, they say.

A grass seed company is urging bankers to offer "horticultural premiums," the suggestion being that the depositor's grass will grow even if his savings might not.

Need it be said that the banks want your money these days, even if they are reluctant to part with theirs in the form of a home mortgage? And they are willing to try almost any enticement, including high interest rates, to get it.

The assortment of premiums on display seems to suggest that if competition by interest rate fails — and to some extent it might have — the banks will be fighting furiously with premiums.

Mere weeks ago some banks thought they had a great thing in their "wild card" CDs — certificates of deposit unrestricted by rate limitations. But then they found a good deal of the money came not from the outside sources but from the passbooks of their own depositors.

The future of retail banking, and to some extent of society too, is demonstrated by the large number of automated, self-service devices that might reduce the bank's overhead, the customer's wait in line — and provide personal service.

One device, designed to operate from the bank's outer wall, is activated by the customer's bank card. Insert the card and a sign appears on the television screen: "Welcome to — bank, where our customers like the way we work for them."

The customer then raps out his request on a device similar to a touch-tone telephone. He might want to make a loan or pay a utility bill or add to his checking account. The TV screen displays the instructions, but if the customer bungles the job a live teller appears on the screen.

At the end of the transaction, assuming the customer performed an act deemed by the card to be legitimate, out comes his receipt or, in the case of a loan, the money. Inside, the transaction is automatically recorded in the book-keeping system.

The safe companies are here, too, and they have diversified their products to counter the sophistication of those who would do the bank in.

The thief today doesn't necessarily use a gun, although a bullet resistant glass maker is peddling his products. He might try to pass counterfeit bills though, and so the electronic devices are prominent.

Mets repeat '69 miracle

New York Mets play the waiting game

NEW YORK (AP) — It's two miracles down and one to go for the New York Mets.

"You've got to believe," said pitcher Tom Seaver after the miraculous Mets won the National League pennant with a stunning 7-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday.

Winning the pennant for New York's Cinderella team was as unlikely as winning the National League East had been—but there it was.

Next stop is the World Series, an illogical thought through most of the summer when the Mets were far behind the leaders in the NL East. "We were dead three months ago," said veteran Ed Kranepool, "and dead one month ago."

Three months ago, the Mets were 12½ games behind. One month ago, they were in last place. So miracles do happen.

"I just want to win four more games," said a buoyant Yogi Berra, the Mets' manager. "Just four more."

The Mets will go into the World Series Saturday at the American League site—Baltimore and Oakland play the fifth and deciding game in the AL playoffs today—fresh from an emotion-charged playoff series that had every element of baseball drama—and then some.

New York won the deciding game of the five-game set with a pitcher who supposedly wasn't able to win the big ones and with a lineup that wasn't supposed to hit that well.

Seaver, although the ace of the New York staff, was the only Met pitcher to lose a game in the 1969 World Series—when the "Amazins" won their only world championship. And since then, critics have derided Seaver for losing crucial games, calling him a "choke" pitcher.

The Mets' hitting has been suspect all season, too. On paper, their lineup doesn't have nearly the firepower of the Reds. But on Wednesday, they out-hit their supposedly stronger opponents 13-7.

The New York manager had been fired by the fans and the press long before the Mets made their season-ending charge toward the National League East flag. Incidentally, Berra became only the second manager in baseball history to win pennants in both the National and American Leagues. Berra won a flag with the New York Yankees in 1964. The other man to turn the trick was Joe McCarthy, with the National League's Chicago Cubs in 1929 and eight times with the Yankees.

Berra's coveted pennant had a bitter flavor to it, though. After Tug McGraw came in to save Seaver in a bases-loaded, ninth-inning jam, a bizarre scene of mob rule erupted at Shea Stadium.

Uncontained by the park police, thousands of fans rolled out of the stands and literally tore up the place. The vandals not only ripped off temporary stands along first and third base, but scooped giant holes out of the turf.

Several people were hurt in the ensuing madness as the Met fans went berserk, fighting among themselves and attempting to grab the fleeing players who literally ran for their lives. At dusk, the Shea Stadium field had a supernatural moonscape effect with jagged craters throughout.

"They brought the fans from the zoo to the ball park and they bring them back after the game," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose, who had been the object of scorn from Met fans since Monday when he had a brawl-sparking fight with Met shortstop Bud Harrelson.

"Pete was the first one we worried about," said Cincinnati's Johnny Bench. "We thought they were going to kill him."

Rose, who was on base when the last out of the game was made, raced through the crowd untouched into the Cincinnati dugout. Several of the Reds brandished bats just in case they were needed against the mad mob.

"If the cops weren't going to stop those maniacs, we would," said Bench.

In the ninth inning, some officials of the Cincinnati family were evacuated from near the Reds' dugout when unruly fans started to muscle toward the field. About 25 people were escorted to safety in an alleyway under the stands leading to the Reds' clubhouse. Two of them were little girls, both crying and obviously frightened.

"I saw some little girls being pushed face-first in the dirt," said Bench. "It was a disgrace. This wasn't a black mark on baseball—it was a black mark on Shea Stadium. The police did nothing, they just stood around."

Many of the more than 50,000 fans at Shea Stadium had plenty of time to warm up for their passionate celebration. The Mets had taken a 6-2 lead with a four-run fifth inning highlighted by Cleon Jones' run-scoring double.

Then it was just a matter of time before the Mets won their second pennant in five years.

Orioles use long ball

A's blow four-run lead; showdown contest today

OAKLAND (AP) — The game that got away from the Oakland A's forced the American League playoffs into the finale today of a series where the unusual outdistanced the expected and home run hitters haven't been the sluggers.

Catcher Andy Etchebarren and second baseman Bobby Grich provided the power Wednesday that won 5-4 for Baltimore's Orioles after the A's had led 4-0 through six innings and Vida Blue had given up only two singles.

Etchebarren hit a three-run homer that tied the score in the seventh and then Grich led off the eighth with a blast off reliever Rolie Fingers that also cleared the left field fence in the Oakland Coliseum.

The day before, Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris homered in the 11th for a 2-1 victory.

Today, the Orioles face the A's ace right-hander Jim "Catfish" Hunter who was 3-0 against them in a 21-5 season even though Baltimore slammed eight home runs from his offerings.

The Orioles, who saw their ace Jim Palmer blasted in the second inning Wednesday, rely on Doyle Alexander, 12-8. Alexander was 1-0 against the A's and allowed only five hits and one earned run in the 13 1-3 innings he pitched against them in the regular season.

The AL playoffs go an extra day in deciding who will meet the New York Mets in the World Series because of a rain-out Monday.

Etchebarren's hit drove in Don Baylor and Brooks Robinson ahead of him and the latter had already knocked in the first Baltimore run. Then Grich, with 12 homers during the 162-game regular season, homered off a Fingers fast ball.

While Etchebarren and Grich took the batting honors, the Orioles came up with a pair of fine relief pitching performances from Bob Reynolds and Grant Jackson.

Reynolds took over in the second inning up only one run in 4 2-3 innings. Jackson, a southpaw, came on in the seventh with two runners on base and one out and retired the A's Jackson and Gene Tenace, the home run slugger of last year's World Series.

Jackson became the winning pitcher as the Orioles overcame the four-run lead with just eight outs to go.

The State Fair Community College Board of Directors has certainly taken a step in the right direction voting to join a nine-team conference, made up of Missouri and Kansas junior colleges.

Although the league will benefit the athletic departments more than any other proposed area, it will also serve drama, debate, music, art and cultural departments.

If the conference becomes a reality, it will give the SFCC athletic department ready-made, 16-game, home-and-home basketball and baseball schedules. Golf, soccer and tennis will also benefit.

Possibly the most important thing will be the fact that it gives both the teams and fans of the respective institutions something to shoot for — a league championship.

Not all junior colleges enjoy the same athletic support as does SFCC, especially in basketball. But with the increased interest in conference races, strong rivalries are bound to develop. Which in turn, should increase the interest in athletics at the various schools.

By holding music festivals, debate tournaments, art and other cultural exchanges, the biggest part of the student bodies would benefit in some way from a conference.

Other schools showing interest in the proposed league are Longview, Maple Woods and Penn Valley in Kansas City; Highland, Kan.; Haskell Indian Institute (Lawrence, Kan.); Kansas City, Kan.; Community College; Johnson County, Kan.; Community College and Trenton Junior College.

The planning committee, which is scheduled to meet again next week to discuss further the formulation of the league, is hopeful that competition on the conference level can begin with the 1974-75 season.

At least one state-level politician seems to be following in the footsteps of his counterparts in Washington, D.C. Just before the start of the current National Football League season, Congress hurriedly pushed through legislation to lift the ban on local television of games that were sold-out at least 72 hours prior to kick-off.

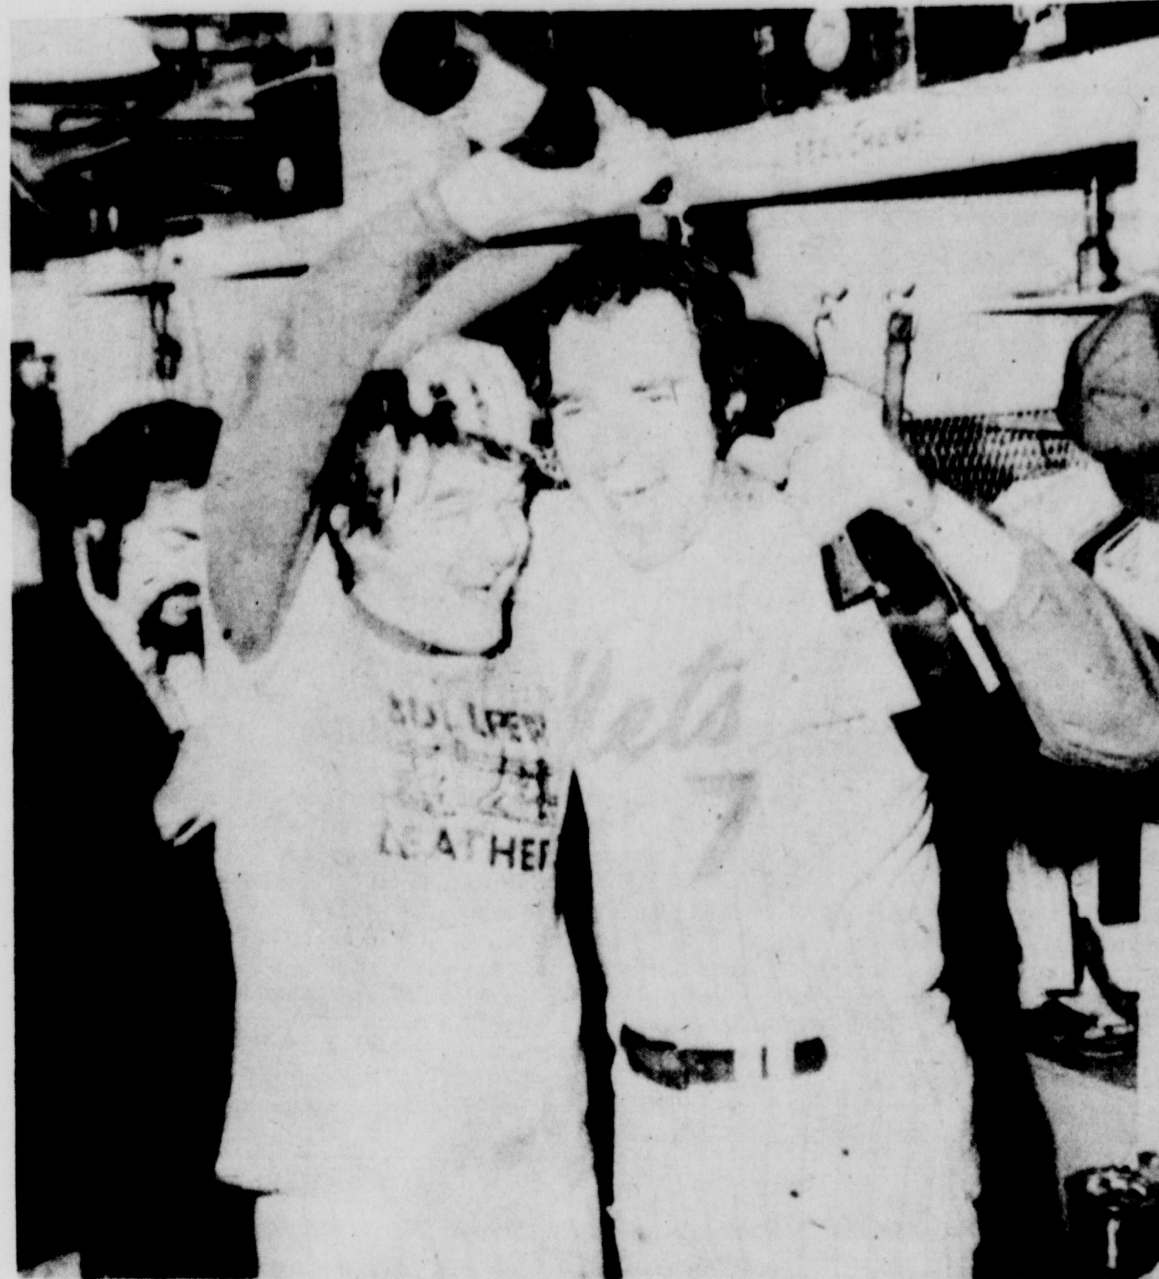

State Senator Ike Skelton (D-Lexington) decided he'd start his own anti-blackout campaign on the state level with the Missouri Tigers. In a statement issued Monday, Skelton said he was going to propose legislation to "prevent the National Collegiate Athletic Association from stopping the televising of any MU football games that have been sold out 48 hours prior to the game."

WCC leaders clash Friday on gridiron

The two league-leaders in the West Central Conference clash in a key football game at Harrisonville Friday night. El Dorado Springs, which knocked off previously undefeated Holden, 7-0, last week, travels to Harrisonville.

Both teams are 2-0 in conference play; both also carry 3-1 overall records.

In another important loop game, Pleasant Hill visits Clinton. Pleasant Hill bumped Knob Noster from the unbeaten ranks last week, 12-0; Clinton stopped Butler, 20-14.

Both have 1-1 records in WCC play; Pleasant Hill has lost only one of its four outings so far this season, while Clinton stands at 2-2.

In other West Central Conference action, Warrensburg visits Knob Noster and Holden hosts Butler.

Tigers only 'average'

Wet weather hampers Big 8

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain or wet fields will put a drag on preparations in some of the Big Eight football camps today.

The slippery ground at Manhattan Tuesday left wide receiver Fred Merrill with a twisted knee, but Kansas State Coach Vince Gibson doesn't think it serious enough to keep him out of the annual classic against Kansas.

And what will it take for the Wildcats to beat Kansas, who moved into the top 20 of the national rankings with their one-point loss to eighth-ranked Tennessee Saturday?

"... a super effort ... Everything will have to go right for us," Gibson said.

"To be rated in the top 20 means nothing," grumbled Kansas Coach Don Fambrough. "It doesn't mean anything until the end of the season."

The Jayhawk coach had good reason for being somber. Defensive end Don Goode and defensive tackle Mitch Sutton are doubtful for K-State. Already ruled out was tight end Ken Saathoff.

Maybe it's the weather, or, in the case of Missouri Coach Al Onofrio, the memory of last year's 62-0 thrashing by Nebraska. Onofrio was as sullen Tuesday as his counterpart at Lawrence, Kan. How was the workout Wednesday, Al?

"I really don't know how else to describe it, other than saying it was very average."

Onofrio spewed his gloom after his Tigers worked on the kicking game, two-minute offense and long-yardage defense situations.

Rain interfered with Nebraska's outdoor workouts, but Coach Tom Osborne, whose fortune is coaching the nation's second-ranked team, had good things to say:

"They had to throw a wet ball and catch a wet ball, and I was amazed at how well they handled it."

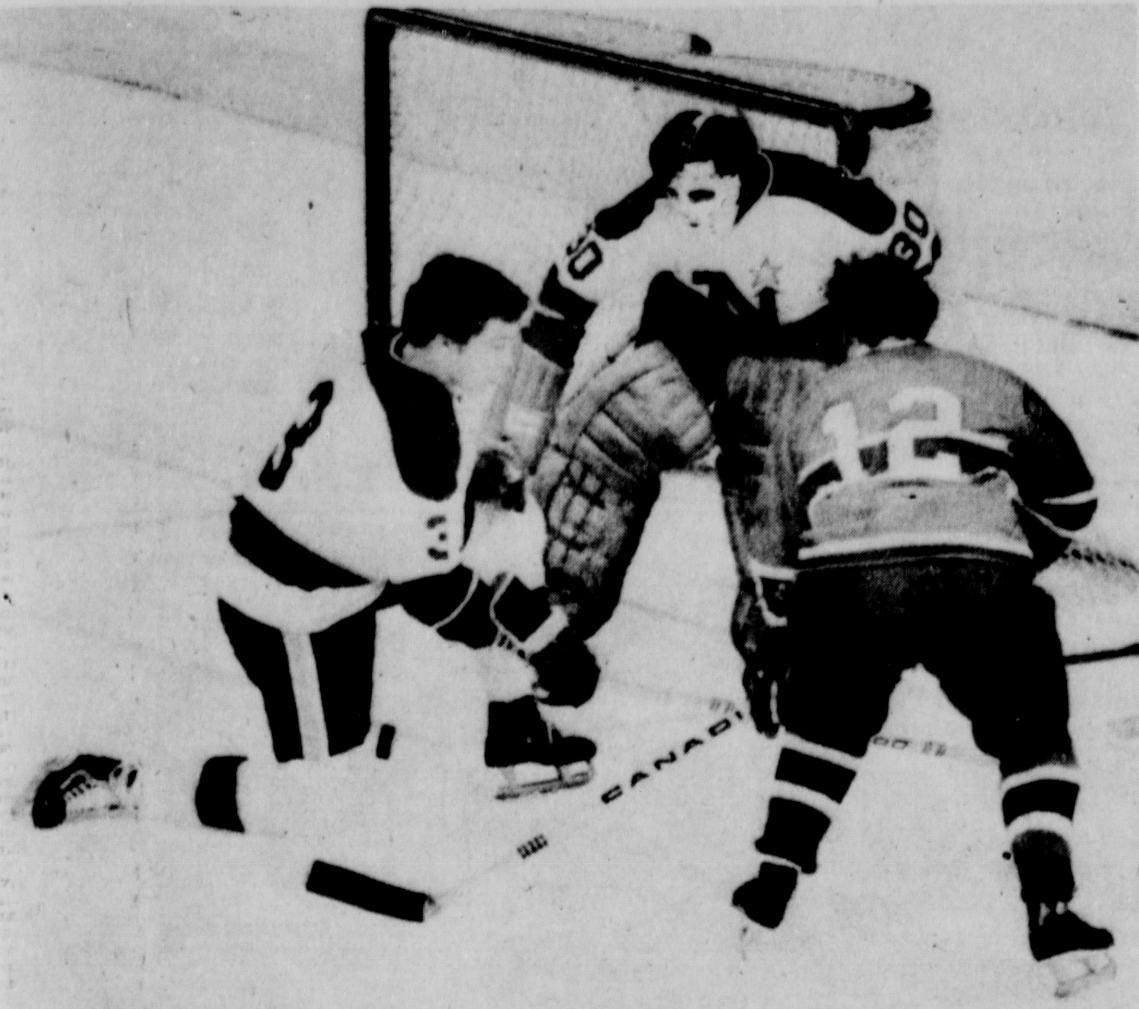

Is it necessary to play "The Eyes of Texas" in the University of Oklahoma dressing room to fire up the Sooners for Saturday's collision with the Longhorns at Dallas?

Quarterback Steve Davis says, "Texas is Texas and this game separates itself from all the other games we play. Coach (Barry) Switzer said that you can throw out all the statistics for this one."

Switzer says, "I don't go for false rah-rah stuff"—and yet the strains of the enemy fight song linger on.

Iowa State tailback Jerry Moses is being converted to a wide receiver. However, his broken finger won't be healed enough for him to play Saturday against Brigham Young.

Star shooting

Montreal's Yvan Cournoyer (12) shoots the puck through the legs of Minnesota North Stars' Fred Barlett (3) in the opening period of action Wednesday night in Bloomington, Minn. Cournoyer was aiming for the far corner of the net. Keeping an eye on the action is North Stars' goalie Cesare Maniago (30). Montreal won the game, 5-2. (UPI)

Lakers should continue football victory string

The Camdenton Lakers cleared the first big hurdle in defense of their Tri-County Conference football championship last Friday when they blasted the Versailles Tigers, 47-0. The pot now seems to be brewing for the confrontation between the Lakers (3-0) and Eldon (3-0) on Oct. 19.

Three more conference games are on tap Friday night, along with two non-conference encounters. Eldon travels to Versailles. Iberia visits Tipton and California plays host to Windsor in conference play.

In non-loop activity, Camdenton is at home against Buffalo, and the Indians of Osage will meet Kemper Military Academy in Boonville.

Only the Windsor-Osage game was missed by this Tri-County Predictor last week, making the season mark 15 of 20 for a percentage of 750.

Here's the way they look this week:

Eldon at Versailles — The Mustangs can't take this one too lightly even though the Tigers are hurting with injuries and lack of offensive consistency. Eldon by 10.

Iberia at Tipton — Coach Ron Custer's Cardinals will have no trouble here — should be a chance for him to get a good look at his reserves. Tipton by 21.

Windsor at California — The Pintos have not yet reached their peak, but should have enough to take care of the Greyhounds. California by seven.

Buffalo at Camdenton — Nothing at stake for Camdenton except their state and area rankings, their undefeated record and a lot of pride.

Buffalo is big and physical; Buffalo also recorded a 14-13 win over Lebanon last week. Camdenton posted a 13-6 win over Lebanon earlier this year. A bruising battle with Camdenton coming out on top by 10.

Osage at Kemper — The Yellowjackets haven't been known for their football prowess since the World War II years. Osage counts this one on its schedule as a win. In a real toss-up, Osage by one.

Warriors postponed again; Archibald's 42 goes in vain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Golden State Warriors have established themselves early in the season as the "Calamity Jane" team of the National Basketball Association.

Wednesday, the Warriors, for the second straight night, had a game postponed because of a slippery court.

The court conditions were caused by moisture on a newly shellacked floor at Cobo Arena in Detroit.

Tuesday night, Golden State was to open its season in Cleveland, but that game was also called off because of a wet floor.

"One thing like this you could say okay," said Warrior Coach Al Attles. "But two? Somebody's trying to tell me something."

In other NBA games, the Chicago Bulls buried Kansas City-Omaha 105-90. Houston blitzed the Philadelphia 76ers 104-88 and Phoenix defeated Seattle 115-111.

The Warrior-Piston game was postponed until tonight. The game actually did get underway and Detroit was ahead 21-

14 in the first quarter when referee Darrell Garretson called off the game after complaints from Warrior players.

Nate Archibald, the NBA's leading scorer last season, poured in 42 points, but it wasn't enough. Chet Walker had 29 points, and Norm Van Lier added 25 for Chicago.

Archibald scored 16 points as the Kings opened up an early 26-14 lead, but the Bulls regained control in the second quarter.

Bill Russell had his debut as head coach of Seattle spoiled when Phoenix opened up a 20-point lead with a minute left in the first half.

Guard Charlie Scott scored 26 points to lead Phoenix, which presented their coach John MacLeod with his first victory since making the jump from Oklahoma University.

The Philadelphia 76ers showed little inclination to burst loose from the losing trend they followed last season.

Houston opened the final quarter with a 16-point barrage led by Rudy Tomjanovich and Calvin Murphy to hand Gene Shue a loss in his first game since becoming 76er coach.

Houston Coach John Egan said, however, he thought the 76ers' prospects would improve once they regain the fulltime services of first round draft choice Doug Collins of Illinois State. Collins had a cast removed from a broken foot a few days ago and played only five minutes Wednesday.

Men's basketball meeting Monday

The recreation committee of the Sedalia Park Board will hold a meeting Monday of persons interested in setting up a men's basketball league this winter. The meeting will be held in Convention Hall at 7 p.m.

Purpose of the meeting is to determine the number of teams, leagues and scheduling.

Husker passing defense is best in the country

NEW YORK (AP) — So far this season, it hasn't paid to try to pass against Nebraska.

The Cornhuskers have been brutal against the passing attack, allowing an average of just 27 passing yards per game. So far, Minnesota has had the most success of any of Nebraska's four opponents and they've gained just 33 yards.

This week, unbeaten Missouri, which has profited from its efficient passing attack, will test the Nebraska defense. The Missouri passing game has a .549 completion percentage. Of course, North Carolina State has a .547 percentage against other clubs, except Nebraska.

While Nebraska has been stopping the pass, it has been Penn State that has been halting the opposition's ground attack.

Opponents have rushed 139 times against Penn State and netted just 145 yards—a little more than one yard per rush and 36.3 yards per game.

Harvard, now 2-0, has allowed only 131 total yards per game and leads major colleges in both total defense and in scoring defense, where they have permitted an average of 3.5 points per game.

Harvard also ranks second behind the Nittany Lions in rushing defense, allowing 38 yards per game.

Oklahoma is second in pass defense, having allowed an average of 60.8 yards passing in each of its first four games. Ohio State is third with a 62 yard average.

Wake Forest leads the nation in punting with a 45.5 average, followed by New Mexico with a 45.3 average.

Tigers on road

S-C faces tough Mexico ground game

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Two ground-oriented teams will clash in non-conference football action Friday night in Mexico, when Sedalia Smith-Cotton meets the Bulldogs, losers of only one of their four outings to date and the league-leader in the Mid-State Conference.

Smith-Cotton, 2-2 on the year after last week's 21-6 setback to Central Missouri Conference power Jefferson City, takes into the game one of the best rushing attacks in the schools recent history. To date, the Tigers have picked up just over 800 yards on the ground, more than half of which has been netted by 6-2, 205-pound tailback Dane Henningsen. Henningsen has 412, keeping alive his chances for a 1,000-yard season.

Mexico, which dropped out of the CMC after the 1971 campaign, has the second and third-leading rushers in its backfield in the Mid-State Conference. Junior Mike Long (5-11, 163), has 336 yards on 65 carries from his halfback position. Balancing the Bulldogs' backfield is Bill Fry, who is only a sophomore, but who has rushed for 334 yards.

Mexico has netted just over 1,000 yards (1,052) to be exact already on the ground in their first four outings. That's tops in the conference. The Bulldogs also lead the league in defense, yielding only an average of 166.2 total yards per game.

The Bulldogs run basically out of the Wishbone, however, they have been utilizing variations of the I-formation.

Chris Hotop, a 175-pound senior is the quarterback; he shared those duties last year with his brother Tim, who graduated in spring.

Oddly enough, even though Long and Fry have picked up most of Mexico's ground yardage, the team's scoring leader is a second-stringer — Robert Young. Young has 24 points, all on touchdowns, and shares the conference lead with Jefferson City Helias' Ron Adrian.

Randy Ezell, one of the biggest linemen in Mid-Missouri, has been moved from center to tackle and has opened most of the holes for Long and Fry. He has little trouble, weighing in at nearly 280. Ezell is a senior and anchors both the offensive and defensive lines.

With Long and Fry carrying the ball and Ezell keying the blocking up front, Greg Cook, the Tigers' head coach, said earlier this week that he felt the Bulldogs running game over tackle will be the toughest S-C will face this season.

Mexico, like Smith-Cotton, hasn't passed much this season. In their first four games, Hotop has netted only 167 yards. But that's more than the Tigers, who have picked up only 105 yards, completing eight of 24.

Cook said his offense and defense will stay pretty much the same, however, he did note that Mike Boggs, the Tigers' second-leading ground gainer with 230 yards, might work more in the backfield with Henningsen. Boggs, who on one series of downs last week against the Jays played all three running back positions, is listed behind Henningsen at tailback.

Rick McRoy will start his fourth game of the season at quarterback. Rich Loftus will start at fullback, with either Jim Vansell or Boggs at the powerback spot.

Most of the Central Missouri Conference spotlight will be centered on Public School Stadium in Jefferson City this week, where the league championship could well be decided.

The Jays host Columbia Hickman in a showdown battle. Jefferson City is undefeated in the conference at 2-0, while Hickman will be seeing its first CMC action. Both teams are 4-0 and ranked high in most metropolitan newspaper polls.

A win for Jefferson City would assure the Jays of the championship, however, a win by the Kewpies could throw the race wide open.

The other CMC member, Hannibal, entertains Fulton in non-conference action.

Hannibal will visit Sedalia next week for homecoming.

points including three aces and a king, four good diamonds: a doubleton spade. His four-club bid is a slam try!

South just goes to four diamonds to show that he really has a two-suit hand. North raises to five and now it is up to South to use that imagination and bid the diamond slam.

It is a very sound contract. Actually, if spades broke 3-3 or diamonds broke 2-2 he would be able to make all the tricks. As it is he has to lose a spade or let East get in an overruff.

We don't claim that the only way to get to this slam is by use of the Jacoby transfer. All we do claim is that the bid lets us get there in the most elegant manner.

War talk mingles with pennant fever

NEW YORK (AP) — There is little talk of the Midwest war at the Eastern Star Restaurant or in Balsala Groceries. It's the politics, something far away that we can do nothing about, say the people along Atlantic Avenue in Brooklyn.

There are an estimated 30,000 people of Arab descent in New York City, the largest Arab community in the country. Atlantic Avenue is the city's Arab quarter.

A mile away, the banner across the East Midwood Jewish Center announces an "Emergency Rally for Israel." The war buzzes through conversations in the M & M Kosher Deli and other stores along Avenue M.

New York counts about 1.8 million Jewish people in its population, the largest Jewish community in the nation. The Midwood section of Brooklyn is one of their neighborhoods.

The New York Mets were playing the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday in the deciding game of the National League baseball championship series. Portable televisions and radios blossomed along Atlantic Avenue.

"People come in and want to know if the olives are fresh and how much is the oil," said the man sitting at the back of the Oriental Mercantile Co. "They don't talk about a war."

The sound of the game came from a radio. Mets ahead, 2-0, after three innings.

Down the street, a television sat atop the meat case in Balsala Groceries. The game, 2-2, in the fifth. The war?

"It's not something to talk about. It's politics," said the man behind the counter. "It's not time for talking. It's time for doing," said a young man who had walked in. "What will you do?" asked one of the four men watching the game.

"We'll do it," was the young man's only response as he walked to the door with a pack of cigarettes.

In front of the Agostino Furniture Co., a television had been set up on the sidewalk. A dozen people watched Willie Mays drive in a run and the ballpark went wild.

"The young people, you will hear them talking wild," said M.H. Amahad, a native of Lebanon. "Intelligent people go about their business. We know what is happening.... It will go well."

Down on Avenue M, fewer people watched the Mets game. "Everybody who comes in, all they say is they will do anything for Israel," said Martin Pulaski, manager of the Blue Ribbon grocery market. "What we can do now is financial. I've given, all I can."

At the New Palace delicatessen it was top of the ninth, Mets ahead 7 to 2, but Cincinnati had the bases loaded. With two outs, a young man wearing a skull cap comes in, buys and leaves.

"The Mets? Oh, the Mets. That's not important," David Heilmann, 19, said on the street outside. "That's a game. There is a war going on. If it lasts long enough, I'll go over to work. But it won't last that long. We'll win."

The Mets won, 7-2. The war goes on.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Maryland's Episcopal Bishop David K. Leighton has offered to go to the side of resigned Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in time of trouble.

Bishop Leighton of Baltimore, participating here in the Episcopal Governing Convention, told its House of Bishops on Wednesday that Agnew belongs to St. Anne's parish in Annapolis, Md., and added:

"I feel that any man in trouble is a man in need of God and of his church."

The bishop sent a telegram to Agnew saying, "I offer the ministrations of the Episcopal Church to you and your family. I am willing to leave the convention at Louisville and will if you call me."

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., actor Ross Martin and comedian Pat Henry combined talents in a performance that helped raise $500,000 for Israel, spokesmen report.

The contributions were made by a large crowd Tuesday night at the Temple Isaiah, a spokesman for Davis said Wednesday. The Los Angeles area also has raised about $2 million for Israel since the Middle East war erupted.

RESOLUTION NO. 609

A RESOLUTION declaring it necessary to bring to the established grade all that part of Ingram Avenue for the purpose of constructing and to construct a concrete curb and gutter on West side of Ingram Avenue from 19th Street to 20th Street, all public streets within the City of Sedalia, Missouri, and providing for special assessments to adjoining property.

BE IT RESOLVED by the Council of the City of Sedalia, Missouri, as follows:

SECTION 1. The Council of the City of Sedalia, Missouri, finds, deems and declares it to be necessary to bring to the established grade all that part of Ingram Avenue from 19th Street to 20th Street for the purpose of constructing and to construct a concrete curb and gutter on the West side of Ingram Avenue from 19th Street to 20th Street, all public streets within the City of Sedalia, according to the plans and specifications to be prepared by the City Engineer of said City, and to be on file with the City Clerk of said City on or before the 1st day of November, 1973.

SECTION 2. BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the curbing and guttering herein provided for shall include all curbs and gutters and all returns of said curb and gutter at all intersections of streets and alleys, if any.

SECTION 3. BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the City Engineer of said City of Sedalia shall prepare plans and specifications for said work and improvement together with an estimate of the cost thereof, and shall file the same with the City Clerk of said City of Sedalia on or before the 1st day of November, 1973.

SECTION 4. BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the cost of said improvement shall be paid by special assessment against the lots and lands fronting or abutting on West side of said part of Ingram Avenue, a public street within said city, as aforesaid, to be so improved and on said improvements being completed, special tax bills shall be issued against said lots and lands chargeable with the cost of said improvement, and that the cost of bringing said part of said Ingram Avenue to the established grade shall be included in the special assessment for the paving for and bringing of said street to the established grade and curbing the guttering all that part of said Ingram Avenue in the City of Sedalia, in manner and form as hereinbefore set forth.

SECTION 5. BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this resolution be published for seven (7) consecutive insertions in the Sedalia Democrat-Capital, a daily newspaper of general circulation printed and published in said City of Sedalia, Missouri.

PASSED by the Council of the City of Sedalia, Missouri, on the 1st day of October, 1973.

APPROVED by the Mayor of said City on this 1st day of October, 1973.

ATTEST with the Seal of said City: Ralph Dedrick, City Clerk

Arrives

Gunnery Sgt. C. W. Keen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett G. Keen, is the new Marine Corps recruiter in Sedalia. He has completed 16 years of service with the Marines and is a native of Camden, Mo. He lived in Richmond for 18 years before joining the service. He is married and has three children, Kevin, 10, Ginger, 7, and Scott, 7.

Sculptures are made with bubbles

EILAT, Israel (AP) — An Israeli artist who experiments with echoes and researches rainbows is prowling around the bottom of the Red Sea to build a sculpture garden — with bubbles.

"My idea is to erect an underwater garden of sculptures whose forms are bubbles produced by pumping compressed air through pipes," says Matty Grunberg, a red-bearded 34-year-old who has switched his painter's palette for an aqua-lung.

Grunberg says the air sculptures make a spectacular sight and particularly at night. "The crystal clear bubbles reflect facets of color that make it an unbelievable trip."

"It's like a glorious illusion while you are completely conscious... LSD without pills."

The Yugoslav-born artist, who has held exhibitions in Paris and New York, says scuba diving in the coral-filled Red Sea off Eilat impressed him so much that "I couldn't get it out of my mind," so he put it to work.

The underwater idea is an extension of conceptual art. "Working with the elements in nature... air is the purest and most natural element."

Grunberg is also working on "a project near Haifa where there is an echo, which I am harnessing to rebound as an art form."

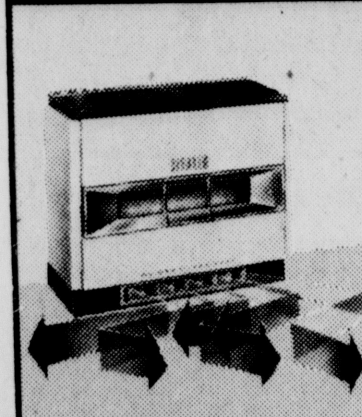

"Or at the Dead Sea, where everything living is consumed by the constant burning sun, I am researching the possibility of a rainbow."

"It would reach from our side of the Dead Sea to the Jordan side, with colored rays bringing them a message of peace."

Successor fight facing President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The threat of a bitter congressional fight over and possible rejection of John Connally illustrates the problem President Nixon faces in nominating a new vice president.

Nixon's criteria are a person who is qualified to be President, someone who shares his foreign policy views and a nominee who can win the approval of the Democratic-controlled House and Senate.

Leading Democrats are firmly opposed to Connally and some Republicans warn that his selection would split both parties and precipitate a bitter and protracted struggle.

Asked Thursday if he thought Republicans would make this clear in submitting their three recommendations — both positive and negative — to the President, one GOP senator said: "If he doesn't know it by now, then it's hopeless."

At the White House, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon "wants to move as expeditiously and rapidly as possible" in sending the name of his choice as Agnew's successor to Congress.

Ziegler said the President has made clear he wants the "direct views" of congressional and Republican leaders, governors and GOP state chairmen.

Basically, Nixon appears to have three choices:

—Selection of one of the major figures in the GOP giving one of the party's presidential hopefuls a leg up on the 1976 nomination. Besides Connally, this list is headed by New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who has passed the word he has an "active interest," and California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

—Selection of a respected senior statesman, a person of impeccable credentials with a less partisan tinge, in a bid to restore national unity. Former Secretary of State William P. Rogers appears to head this list, along with retired Sens. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky and John J. Williams of Delaware; Sen.

Barry Goldwater of Arizona, and the two top GOP congressional leaders, Sen. Hugh Scott and Rep. Gerald R. Ford.

—A dark-horse, a younger less mentioned figure, in the way that Spiro T. Agnew was selected by Nixon in 1968. Mentioned in this context were former Rep. Donald Rumsfeld, the U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization; former California Lt. Gov. Robert Finch, and former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, whose presence in Washington on an apparently unrelated matter sparked considerable speculation.

"I bet he comes up with a surprise. He likes to do that," said Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., noting the original Agnew choice and two of Nixon's Supreme Court nominees who were rejected by the Senate.

In both parties, there is considerable sentiment for a senior figure who could be quickly approved, would set a less controversial tone in the vice presidency.

Free hand is Nixon's intention

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon believes he has a free hand in choosing a new vice president and need not confine himself to selecting a "caretaker" without 1976 presidential ambitions, White House sources reported Thursday.

They said Nixon hopes to nominate a successor to Spiro T. Agnew within the next few days and perhaps by the end of the week.

The selection process got under way in earnest Thursday — less than 24 hours after Agnew resigned as vice president and pleaded no contest to a tax evasion charge.

Under the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, ratified in 1967, Nixon's nominee must win majority approval from the Democratic-controlled Senate and House. That provision has prompted some Congress members to suggest they should be the President's partners in naming a new vice president.

One Nixon associate emphasized the President feels he can act "without parameters" of any kind and is seeking a "strong man" he would regard as well-qualified to take over the presidency in the event of Nixon's death or disability.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren was asked if Nixon would forego choosing a nominee who might prove a strong contender for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination, a limitation urged upon the President by many Democrats in Congress.

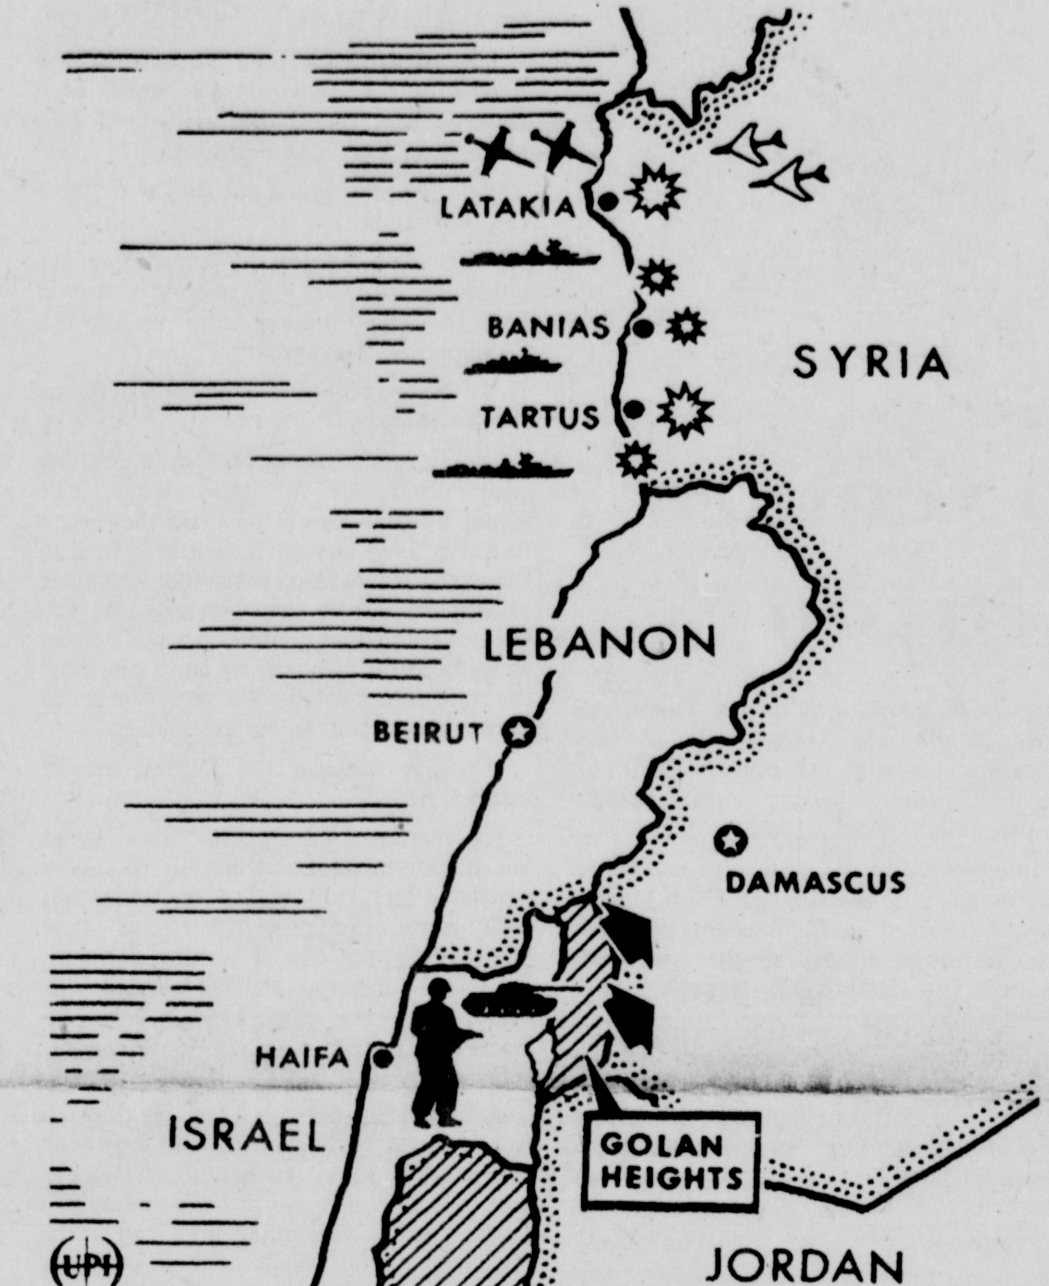

"I would not limit the President's options in seeking a successor," Warren replied, underscoring the description of Nixon's attitude as described by other associates.

The President's distaste for selecting a caretaker candidate came soon after the reporting of a strong undercurrent of bipartisan opposition to John B. Connally, who is regarded as a leading potential contender for the 1976 GOP nomination. One congressional source made a flat prediction that a Connally nomination would be rejected by the Senate.

As described by associates, Nixon's approach to the search for an Agnew successor would be wholly consistent with making Connally his final choice. The former Democratic governor of Texas who became a Republican in May is the only man Nixon has twice lauded publicly as eminently qualified to be president.

Nixon, in finding a replacement for Agnew, had called on Republican members of Congress, governors and state party officials to submit suggested names by the end of the day. Lists of potential candidates were being coordinated by Nixon's assistant, Rose Mary Woods.

At the Justice Department, Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson told a televised news conference the White House played an important role in the negotiations that led to Agnew's resignation and his acceptance of a tax evasion charge.

Claim Israeli tanks rolling to Damascus

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Israeli military command claimed its tanks blasted their way through Syrian defenses Thursday and were rumbling along the road to Damascus. Defense Minister Moshe Dayan predicted lightning victory but did not say if the Syrian capital was the objective.

"I think that by tonight or overnight this front will be finished off in our favor," Dayan told his soldiers in a report broadcast over Israeli television. Syria ignored the claim of a breakthrough on the Golan Heights and said its forces there were holding firm.

In other developments: —At the United Nations in New York, Foreign Minister Mohamed H. el-Zayyat of Egypt said a communique to him from Cairo told of 500 persons being killed in air attacks on Port Said, Cairo suburbs and Egypt's northern delta.

—Pentagon sources said the United States was preparing Thursday to rush tons of ammunition to Israel.

—Cairo radio said Egyptian tanks punched farther into the Sinai peninsula to wipe out a fleeing column of Israeli armor.

—In the naval war, Syria and Israel reported conflicting versions of a battle off the Syrian coast. The Greek Merchant Marine Ministry said an Israeli gunboat sank one of its ships, killing two crewmen.

—In the air war, Syrian and Egyptian communiques claimed more than 100 Israeli planes shot down Thursday, and a Tel Aviv communique said Israel bagged a total of 11 Arab planes. Pentagon observers believe both sides have exaggerated their aerial kill reports.

—Egypt's Middle East News Agency, in a report immediately described by the U.S. State Department as an "outrageous lie," said Western diplomatic sources in Cairo claimed that U.S. carrier-based warplanes had attacked Egyptian positions.

Says dirty tricks hurt effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern's former political director testified Thursday that Nixon campaign dirty tricks contributed to the Democratic party's 1972 wounds.

"What was created by the sabotage effort was an unparalleled atmosphere of rancor and discord within the Democratic party," Frank Mankiewicz told the Senate Watergate committee.

Republican witnesses have claimed that the anti-Democratic sabotage added little to President Nixon's landslide victory over McGovern.

But Mankiewicz said Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's backers told him they blamed McGovern for anti-Muskie sabotage in the New Hampshire Democratic presidential primary.

He said false leaflets were distributed during the crucial California primary, leading McGovern and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey to suspect each other of a "vicious campaign of distortion and vilification." He said this may have led to Humphrey's attempt to claim some California delegates won by McGovern.

He said a fake, insulting telephone call to AFL-CIO President George Meany may have contributed to Meany's decision to withhold the giant labor organization's backing from McGovern.

Mankiewicz said the purpose of the sabotage seemed to be to "create within the Democratic party such a strong sense of resentment among the candidates and their followers as to make unity of the party impossible once a nominee was selected."

"At that, the effort seems to have been most successful," he said in a prepared opening statement.

During the panel's morning session, another former McGovern aide, Rick Stearns, accused the committee of a partisan, political attempt to smear the McGovern campaign.

The 29-year-old Harvard Law School freshman fenced with both Democrats and Republicans on the committee, which had prepared a subpoena to serve on him before his lawyers said he would come voluntarily. He complained he had been called fewer than 24 hours earlier.

Massive downpour sends rivers in Missouri on torrid rampage

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Up to five more inches of rain in northern and western Missouri sent rivers on a rampage Thursday.

The main battle against high water was at the frequently flooded town of Smithville, on the north fringe of the Kansas City metropolitan area.

The rain slackened off in the afternoon, although showers and thunderstorms persisted in a band 100 miles wide which reached east of a line from near Bethany in north-central Missouri to near Joplin in the southwest corner of the state.

About the same time, there were some heavy showers on a line from the Lake of Ozarks through Springfield to the Arkansas line.

Overnight rains had measured 6.09 inches at Bethany. Measurements of around five inches were reported at Amity, Conception, Oregon, Skidmore and Pattonsburg in northwest Missouri.

The 4.70 inches measured at Kansas City International Airport was an all-time record for a 24-hour period in October. St. Joseph reported 3.81.

About 500 people were evacuated from their homes at Smithville, five inches of water swirled through the city hall and some merchants abandoned their stores in the business district.

Several streets were six feet under water as the Little Platte River rose 12 feet above its natural banks. There was an estimate that 50 to 75 per cent of the town was flooded.

The Little Platte went another eight feet higher in 1964 and damage was estimated at $10 million. Some businesses and homeowners have moved to high ground since then and Missouri's delegation in Congress has been asked to speed up plans for a federal flood control reservoir.

Although the rains had let up, forecasters said a storm system still was stalled over Missouri and there could be more downpours Thursday night.

The Missouri River was overflowing or lapping at the top of its banks all the way from the northwest corner of the state to its mouth just above St. Louis.

It was cresting at 8.5 feet above flood stage at St. Joseph and expected to top its banks at Leavenworth, Kan., by seven feet Friday morning.

A similar crest was forecast for Kansas City, but it is protected by dikes and only lowlying farm land was in danger along the west border of the state above Kansas City.

Crests of nine to 12 feet above flood stage were predicted for Saturday on the stretch from Kansas City through Sibley, Napoleon, Lexington, Waverly and Glasgow, Mo.

The Missouri was expected to rise six feet over its banks at Boonville and three feet at Jefferson City on Sunday.

Overflows of one to three feet were expected below Jefferson City, far below the levels of last spring's devastating floods on the lower Missouri.

Food price hikes to continue

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumers got more bad news on Thursday. Food experts said dairy and bread prices would keep going up in coming months and predicted that this year's Thanksgiving turkey will cost twice as much as last year's.

The news came at a briefing sponsored by the Super Market Institute, a nonprofit trade association.

Panelists included George Mehren, a former assistant secretary of agriculture who now heads Associated Milk Producers Inc., the largest dairy farm cooperative in the country; Robert Wunderle, director of economic research of the National Broiler Council; Richard Lyng, another former assistant secretary of agriculture who is president of the American Meat Institute; and William Mead, chairman of Campbell Taggart Inc., a baking company.

Mehren said milk production in the United States has been declining for 11 months and is now about 5 per cent below 1972 levels. He predicted there would be a 10 per cent increase in the price of fluid or drinking milk between now and January 1.

Mehren also said that because of decreased milk supplies, there may be scattered shortages of some items. "I am very doubtful that the Associated Milk Producers will have butter to sell in December," he said.

Wunderle said supplies of chicken and other poultry products were generally ample to meet demand, but said turkey production was about 5 per cent below last year. He said everyone who wants a turkey for Thanksgiving will be able to get one, but added that prices will remain about 35 cents a pound more than last year, an increase of 100 per cent.

Mead, whose Dallas-based company has 59 subsidiaries operating 75 plants throughout the United States, said the overall price increase in bakery products this year will be about 20 per cent. About 5 per cent of the increase, he said, will come in the last three months of the year.

All of the experts blamed government controls, export policies and rising feed and grain prices for the hikes at the retail levels. None offered much hope of any change in the immediate future.

Mead said that although this year's wheat crop was a record, increased demand, particularly overseas, will leave little grain in storage. "Unless it rains just right, unless we have a bumper crop, we're going to be out of wheat in this country," he said, looking ahead to next year.

Lyng provided the single note of optimism. Echoing other industry sources, he said meat supplies are up and prices are down. He predicted beef and pork would remain at or below freeze levels through the next month, then might rise slightly.

Behavior researchers awarded Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Three pioneers in research on behavioral patterns shared the 1973 Nobel Prize for Medicine or Physiology Thursday. Their studies of birds and bees helped explain an infant's first smile and sexual and aggressive drives in animals and humans.

Splitting the $120,000 prize were two retired Austrian professors who worked in Germany, and a Dutch zoologist who tested their findings in experiments at Oxford, England.

The faculty of the Karolinska Medical Institute cited Viennese-born Profs. Karl Ritter von Frisch, 86, and Konrad Lorenz, 69, and Dutchman Nikolaas Tinbergen, 66, for "their discoveries concerning organization and elicitation of individual and social behavior patterns."

They were described by the awarding body as the most eminent founders of a new science called ethology. Its name is taken from the Greek word for habit or manner, and it concerns the comparative study of behavior.

Dr. Von Frisch concentrated in the 1920s on studying the behavior of bees, interpreting their language of dances to show the location of honey finds. The biologist professor emeritus of Munich University still is busy collecting insects, and writing new books, one on "Animals As Builders."

Dr. Lorenz, the most widely known of the recipients, retired two years ago from the Max Planck Institute in Germany to Alternberg in his native Austria. He founded an institute for behavioral research there in 1949.

Lorenz, whose animal studies started with jackdaws in the attic of his parents home at the turn of the century and escalated to primates, has written books on his "Talks With Animals." A recent one was "On Aggression," mostly based on studies of wolves but with much bearing on human aggressiveness as displayed in wars, overcrowded places or in hockey rinks.

A new conference of junior colleges

The Board of Trustees of State Fair Community College has taken the first necessary step toward creation of a new conference of junior colleges that holds great promise, athletically and academically.

On Monday the board voted to join a proposed conference of Missouri and Kansas community colleges involving nine schools. Besides State Fair, members would include Longview, Maple Woods and Penn Valley Community Colleges in Kansas City; Trenton Junior College, Trenton, Mo.; and four colleges in Kansas: Johnson County Community College, Overland Park; Highland Community College, Highland; Haskell Indian Junior College, Lawrence; and Kansas City, Kan., Community College.

Besides offering keen athletic competition, the conference would greatly cut down on the costs and time involved in transporting SFCC teams under the present set-up.

The conference would have a combined enrollment of nearly 21,000 students, and would represent the largest inter-collegiate rivalry in a 125-mile radius of metropolitan Kansas City, according to promoters.

Backers of the Missouri-Kansas junior college conference are quick to point out that the advantages would go well beyond athletics. Dr. Wallace E. Galluzzi, superintendent of Haskell Junior College and chairman of a study committee investigating the conference, said the arrangement would permit "sharing of institutional resources for a variety of academic, cultural and social activities." He called it "an economical way to expand the educational comprehensiveness of the colleges without a great expenditure of financial resources."

The potential for such activities is almost limitless, and could include concerts, debate, drama, and artistic events, visiting lecturers, exhibits and shows. Athletic competition could expand and flourish among the nine schools tied together by a common bond.

We hope the boards of the other junior colleges in the proposed conference lose no time in getting behind the idea.

How Firm a Foundation

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — F. Donald Nixon, the President's irrepressible brother, showed up in the Dominican Republic in October, 1969, to talk business with President Joaquin Balaguer.

In a back room of the presidential palace, they discussed what Donald could do for the Dominican Republic and what the Dominicans could do for Donald.

Out of the powwow came mining concessions for Donald and an opportunity to build a luxury apartment complex on government-owned ocean frontage in Santo Domingo.

In return, Balaguer wanted Donald to use his influence with the White House. Recalls businessman John Meier, who accompanied Donald Nixon to Santo Domingo:

"Balaguer was talking in front of a group of people, and he was blunt about it. He said he needed White House help in his election, and he said he needed a bigger share of the sugar quota."

"Later on, when everybody was outside, Balaguer said something to his interpreter, and the interpreter came over and whispered to Don. Balaguer and Don then went to the back room and closed the door."

The following year, the Dominican sugar quota was increased from 458,000 to 515,000 tons. And two veteran Republican campaigners, Clifton White and ex-Rep. Donald "Buz" Lukens, went to Santo Domingo during Balaguer's election campaign.

Three witnesses have sworn to us in affidavits that they heard Donald say he never embarked on his business adventures without first checking with the President.

But White House sources tell us the President was so concerned about Donald's wheeling and dealing that he asked aide John Ehrlichman to keep an eye on Donald and, finally, ordered a tap on Donald's telephone.

Ehrlichman became particularly

Merry-go-round

Dominican venture by Donald Nixon

suspicious of Donald's dealings with Meier, formerly a business aide of billionaire Howard Hughes.

Once, Ehrlichman asked the President's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, to fly to Las Vegas to check on Meier. Another time, the President's friend, Bebe Rebozo, telephoned Hughes' headquarters in Las Vegas and demanded that Meier be kept away from Donald.

Subsequently, Rebozo made another call to Hughes' headquarters and angrily reported that his informants had just told him Meier and Donald were together at that moment at the Orange County airport.

Meier was subsequently sued by Hughes, who charged his former associate with skimming off profits from mining claims. Meier is also under indictment in Nevada on tax evasion charges. He claims the charges are politically motivated and are an outgrowth of the White House phone taps on Donald.

My associate George Clifford flew to Vancouver, British Columbia, to talk to Meier about the Dominican deal. "We were in the Dominican Republic looking at deals," confirmed Meier. "Donald toured the property we were offered for the apartments. He did all the talking with Balaguer."

Clifford also flew to New York City to see businessman Thomas E. Murray Jr., who made the arrangements for the Dominican trip.

"They took us on a helicopter tour of properties that were possible sites for real estate development," recalled Murray. "But our main purpose was to have the minister of mining come up with an area for exploration for us."

In Los Angeles, Clifford questioned Arthur Blech, the certified accountant who handles President Nixon's taxes and who also prepared the proposal for the Santo Domingo apartment deal.

The proposal, obtained by us, envisioned "10,000 apartment units (garden type), two and three bedrooms... The land (250 acres) would be transferred to a Joint Venture (corporation) by the Dominican government free and clear of any encumbrances and also improved with all the necessary streets, curbs (offset improvements) and utilities..."

Interviewed at his posh office near the LaBrea tar pits, Blech insisted that Donald wasn't involved in the housing deal and that he alone discovered the site while visiting the Dominican Republic with Meier.

Our sources say Donald still has an interest in the mines, called Las Canitas, which are rich in manganese and copper. The housing venture, however, has fallen through. Donald refused to comment when reached by telephone.

FOOTNOTE: Donald Nixon was given the red carpet treatment during his Santa Domingo visit. His party took over an entire floor of a fashionable hotel, and President Balaguer posted 30 armed guards in the hotel to protect them. Balaguer also gave them a view of the island's entire coastline from former Dictator Rafael Trujillo's 350-foot yacht, with the chief of the Dominican navy aboard. Finally, there was a sit-down dinner at the presidential palace. Some 600 guests, including the diplomatic corps and the military brass, stood in line to shake hands with Donald.

How labor protests in Japan

WASHINGTON — If anyone is wondering why the Japanese are leading the world in productivity, I think I may have a clue.

Buchwald

A friend of mine was visiting a factory in Tokyo that makes television sets. As he was being taken on the tour, he noticed that the Japanese workers were wearing headbands painted a bright red.

"What is the significance of the red headband?" my friend asked the manager who was showing him around.

"The workers are on strike and that is their way of telling us."

"But if they are on strike, why are they working?"

The manager seemed amazed at the question. "If they didn't work they wouldn't get paid, and we would lose production. This would never do."

"So instead of going out they wear their red headbands?"

"Yes. That's to let us know they are unhappy. Naturally we are very disturbed that they are unhappy, so we try to negotiate the grievances."

"Is the red band the only way you know they're unhappy?"

The manager answered, "No, they show their discontent in many ways. For example, when they're on strike they come to work 15 minutes early and they stand in the courtyard and sing songs telling of their unhappiness with the management. It's very sad for management to hear these songs because it means we have not done the right things for our workers. The songs hurt us more than the red headbands."

"Do they sabotage the TV sets they're assembling?"

The manager was agast. "That would not be an honorable thing to do. As a matter of fact, they work even harder and with more proficiency to show how unhappy they are. The better they perform, the more unhappy we in management become and the more eager we are to reach a settlement."

"I know you Americans will never understand this, but it is a terrible thing to come to work in the morning and hear your entire labor force singing songs against you. It is also very sad to walk among the workers as we are doing now and know that although they are doing their jobs with fervor, their hearts are not in it."

"Will they speak to you while they're on strike?" my friend asked.

"Oh, yes, they will speak to me," the manager replied, "and no one will mention in the conversation that they are on strike. But I know and they know what the situation is and it's very uncomfortable for all of us. When a strike takes place, the management has many soul-searching meetings to discover what we did wrong. It is a great loss of face in this country to have your workers on strike."

"Have you ever had a strike where the workers have refused to go to work?"

"Not in our plant. But American labor methods slowly are being brought to Japan by some radical leaders. Not long ago the subway workers went out on strike."

"That must have caused havoc," my friend said.

"Not exactly," the manager replied. "They went out at 3 a.m. on Sunday for a half-hour so they would inconvenience the least number of passengers."

"It would be marvelous if Japan would teach American labor leaders their methods," my friend said. "All it would cost the unions over here would be the price of red headbands. I can just see the United Auto Workers singing anti-management songs in the courtyard of the Ford Motor Co."

The manager checked a list of production figures someone handed him. "Just as I thought," he said, "we're up 10 per cent this week."

"When do you think the strike will be over?" my friend asked.

"I hope soon," the manager said sadly. "Management can't take the pressure much longer."

A nice cause for Common Cause

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — If there is one cause that traditionally has been close to the heart of every truly liberal outfit, it is the cause of free speech. Common Cause, beyond peradventure, is a truly liberal outfit. If the directors of Common Cause want to pursue a nice cause close at home, they might take up the matter of free speech within their own operations.

This suggestion arises from a recent curious incident in Connecticut. It is not the greatest story that ever failed to make the evening news, but it casts a revealing light upon contemporary liberalism in action.

On Oct. 8 at Sacred Heart College in Bridgeport, and began lining up sponsors to help foot the bill.

Common Cause agreed to contribute modestly to the venture, and thus became a co-sponsor.

Mrs. Phyllis B. Hayes, president of the Fairfield League, began putting the program together. The idea was to have a principal speaker who would respond to the questions and views of a supporting panel. Somewhere around the first of September, Mrs. Hayes telephoned Professor Ralph Winter Jr. of the Yale School of Law, and explained delicately that the League's budget would not afford a big-name speaker from Washington. Would Professor Winter himself undertake to give the principal speech? He agreed.

Winter's credentials were excellent. A former senior fellow at the Brookings Institution, he serves as a special consultant to the Subcommittee on Separation of Powers of the Senate Judiciary Committee. He has written and spoken on the financing of federal campaigns, and has testified on pending bills dealing with election reform. There was but one thing wrong: Common Cause supports public financing, and Professor Winter opposes it.

Let him continue the story: "In all my conversations with Mrs. Hayes, I warned her that some of the co-sponsors might object to my speaking because I disagreed with their position on the issues. She told me that it did not matter because the League chose the speaker, that the meeting was not intended to be a forum for the sponsoring groups but rather an open discussion of the issues, and that the other interested groups would in any event be represented on a panel that was to question me..."

"On Tuesday, September 18, Mrs. Ernest Stuckel called me and informed me that some co-sponsors had announced that they would withdraw their support for the meeting if I were the principal speaker. She said that in particular, Common Cause was 'very unhappy.' She further stated that because the meeting could not be held without the financial support from these sponsors that my invitation was canceled, although they would permit me to sit as a member of the panel. Since I felt that I had been treated in an extremely discourteous fashion and that the content of the meeting was being censored by Common Cause and perhaps other groups, I refused any further participation."

Burke Marshall, a Common Cause board member and deputy dean of Yale Law, learned of the "disinvitation" and reacted in disbelief. His protest was in vain. He was told that because Winter's views were not "consonant" with the views of Common Cause, the invitation extended to him would have to be withdrawn.

A spokesman for Common Cause, in Washington, has confirmed Professor Winter's account. The spokesman suggested to me that the matter was "not much of a story."

Well, it isn't much of a story, but if the incident reflects the liberalism around which the directors of Common Cause are making common cause, some soul-searching is in order when next the directors meet.

Says Agnew resignation good for U.S.

CHICAGO (AP) — U. S. Attorney James R. Thompson, who was to defend the Justice Department in a suit brought by Spiro T. Agnew, says the former vice president is a "crook."

"The country is well rid of him," said Thompson. "The man is a crook."

Thompson spoke at a news conference Wednesday evening. He had been appointed to defend the Justice Department in a suit charging, in part, that alleged news leaks from the department interfered with Agnew's right to a fair trial.

"I have never seen a stronger case for charges of extortion," Thompson said. "If the case had gone to trial, a conviction would have resulted."

Agnew has denied that he was guilty of extortion or other allegations in the case.

The family will receive friends Friday afternoon and from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday at the James Funeral Home here.

Relations predicted to improve

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The chief justice of the Missouri Supreme Court predicted Thursday a new era of good relations between the Legislature and the judicial branch of the state government.

Chief Justice Robert T. Donnelly expressed his hopes in a speech to the annual convention of the Missouri Bar Association.

Justice Donnelly said he has accepted an invitation by Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, the president pro tem of the Missouri Senate, to address a joint session of the Legislature.

"This could signal the opening of a new era for the judicial department of Missouri," Donnelly said.

"For too long, it has seemed the court system has been the 'poor relation' in state government ... the stepchild whose needs for new clothes, braces for his teeth and books for school have been given inadequate attention. It has appeared that many have forgotten that the judiciary is a separate and equal branch of Missouri government."

The chief justice said in recent years this has been changing.

"The legislature, in recognition of the courts' vital role in the over-all justice system, has looked with greater favor on our money needs and the need for restructuring our court system," he said.

A major problem, Donnelly said, is the increasing work load on the Supreme Court and on the three divisions of the Court of Appeals, in Kansas City, Springfield and St. Louis.

One possibility is adding judges to the Court of Appeals or creating additional districts. Bills to increase the number of judges at Kansas City and St. Louis did not make it through the 1973 legislature.

About 1,000 lawyers are attending the bar convention.

Its main focus Thursday was on a proposal to almost completely rewrite Missouri's criminal laws, some of which go back to 1835.

Norwin D. Houser, a commissioner of the Missouri Supreme Court and chairman of a committee which drafted the new code, presented it to the convention.

"We have tried to simplify and systematize the criminal code and write it in understandable English instead of 19th century legalese," Houser said.

The work started four years ago when Atty. Gen. John Danforth set up the committee. Houser said the draft will be introduced in bill form in December so it can be considered by the 1974 legislature, but it usually takes several years to satisfy the objections always encountered by such sweeping legislation and build up the steam to get it passed.

The draft includes a model statute on the death penalty which the Legislature might adopt immediately if it decides to restore that punishment.

There also are separate sections on abortion and wire tapping. The committee did not propose new sections on drug abuse, election regulations and liquor violations because they were recently revised by the legislature.

Missouri's laws on capital punishment and abortion were invalidated by decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court. It has no law on wire tapping.

The revised code would abandon an old law which requires that the operator of an electric street car be protected from the cold during winter months. Another obsolete section prohibits the driving of farm animals across county and state lines to graze on unimproved land. Another prohibits the use of females under 18 as telegraph messengers.

Houser said there would be major changes in the penalties provided for crimes. He contended some penalties in the present laws are too severe, others not severe enough.

Another big change would leave the sentencing of the convicted up to a judge instead of letting the jury fix the punishment. Houser said only three states still let the jury decide what the exact penalty will be.

Welcoming plaque

Jake Siragusa, center, president of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, displays a plaque that will be presented at future grand openings of new businesses in Sedalia, wishing the new businessmen "good luck," as symbolized by the horseshoe on the plaque. With Siragusa in the photo are Abe Silverman, right, and John Ellison, both past presidents of the Chamber. The showing of the plaque followed a dinner given by the Chamber for past presidents. The event was held at Holiday Inn Wednesday evening and was attended by 14 past presidents as well as current officers and members. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Industrial director plan gets backing of Chamber

The necessity for a full time industrial director for Sedalia, continuing communication between the Chamber of Commerce and members and the attitude of "striving to sell" Sedalia were the main points discussed Wednesday night at a dinner meeting at the Holiday Inn of the Chamber. Fourteen past presidents and other members attended. John Ellison, president from 1972-73, said.

"It was a productive meeting, a constructive meeting," he said.

The past presidents were called on individually to make comments and suggestions to the Chamber.

Current President Jake Siragusa outlined for the former presidents the activities of the Chamber for this year.

These include working with the city for procurement of an industrial director; quarterly breakfasts featuring governmental speakers; the Carson and Barnes Circus and Scott Joplin Festival; a drawing for two freezers of beef bought at the 4-H sale and the Christmas Parade, both in cooperation with retail merchants.

A membership drive which added 58 Chamber members was also discussed, as were an Ambassadors Club to call on members and sponsorship of the airman of the quarter program, among other activities.

Past presidents attending were: Abe Silverman, 1946-47; Aaron W. Haller, 1950-51; Jaek M. Cunningham, 1951-52; Kenneth U. Love Sr., 1954-55; Floyd H. Priddy, 1955-56; Del Heckart, 1957-58; William C. Hopkins, 1958-60; S. E. Boyle, 1961-63; P. Cecil Owen, 1963-65; Carl W. Yates Jr., 1965-68; Thomas T. Keating, 1968-70; Louis R. Hughes Jr., 1970-71; Bill Burkholder, 1971-72; John B. Ellison Jr., 1972-73.

Hearing date set for gas rate hike requests by firm

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — A hearing on a request by Missouri Utilities Co., of Cape Girardeau for increases in electric, gas and water service rates will be held by the Missouri Public Service Commission here Feb. 4. The firm provides electric service to Smithton.

The hearing will be held for the purpose of cross-examining witnesses and will begin at 10 a.m. A pre-hearing conference is scheduled for Jan. 28, and intervenors and members of the PSC staff must file their prepared testimony and exhibits by Jan. 18. The company has already filed its evidence.

The firm is asking for increases in gross annual revenues of $1,614,500 in electric rates, $397,000 in gas rates and $203,800 water rates. Missouri Utilities provides electric and gas services in Cooper, Moniteau, Morgan and Saline Counties, among others. Smithton is the only community in Pettis County receiving electric service from the company, it was reported.

NAACP convention speaker is named

An address by Elmer Turner, St. Louis, area director of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, will highlight the state convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Oct. 19 and 20 at the Ramada Inn here.

Mrs. Haristine Draffen, 209 East Jackson, president of the local NAACP chapter, said 150 delegates are expected to attend the meeting, which will also feature education workshops both days. A Freedom Fund dinner, featuring Turner, will be held at 7 p.m. Oct. 20.

Among the items to be discussed at the workshops are affirmative action in higher education and equal opportunity employment, a spokesman for the state NAACP office said.

Admission to the convention, which reportedly is the first such meeting to be held in Sedalia, is open to the public. Mrs. Draffen said. Reservations for the dinner, can be made by contacting Mrs. Draffen at 826-3891.

Will investigate reported sabotage

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Circuit Atty. Brendan Ryan has confirmed reports in the Thursday editions of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that an investigation will be undertaken into allegations of widespread sabotage and arson at the General Motors Assembly Plant on the city's North Side.

The Post-Dispatch said the incidents of arson and sabotage at the facility were so extensive that some indictments are expected.

Company officials have declined to say who requested the investigation at the plant, where some 9,000 persons are employed.

Edward Lavin, president of United Auto Workers Local 25 at the plant, said he had no information on the claims of sabotage. But Lavin said the union would fully cooperate in any investigation of the charges.

President approved bargaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon approved the secret bargaining that led to Spiro T. Agnew's resignation as vice president and acceptance of a felony conviction, Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson said Thursday.

The White House counsel was the pivotal middleman who brought together the government prosecutors and Agnew's lawyers for negotiations sparing Agnew a prison sentence but subjecting him to public disgrace and possible civil suits for thousands of dollars in back taxes, Richardson said.

In a nationally televised news conference, the attorney general said he hopes "the American people understand and support what has been done."

He said Agnew faces no further federal criminal proceedings based on the nine-month probe of corruption in Maryland politics. A state prosecutor quickly said he plans no action against Agnew.

But Richardson said it's up to the Internal Revenue Service whether to bring civil suits for the collection of substantial but still undetermined sums owed as taxes and penalties on a minimum of $87,500 Agnew allegedly received as illegal payoffs in three public offices, including the vice presidency.
